Thread: How would you spend 1 Million Dollars in just 24 hours?

Valdoking - May 4, 2020, 3:31 pm

You get 24 hours spend 1 Million dollars and you can't deposit it to any bank.

Keep in mind buying expensive things like a car or a house usually take more than 24 hours due to contracts and such.

Toosii - May 4, 2020, 3:33 pm

Gamble it all in a casino good game

I would buy a house in Hawaii and bam right there in a less of an hour the money is gone but you can make money back from it haha

Perileos - May 4, 2020, 3:39 pm

I would make down payments on rent in cash, see if I can arrange another place to rent. If I can rent another place, use it to store a fuckton of grocery products that don't perish. Fuckton of electronic devices, tv's, phones and so on.

Why wouldn't you just buy a house you child rent it out and make money back and still be able to store your groceries and shit haha

humanbody - May 4, 2020, 3:45 pm

Invest half a million in BTC the rest I can buy myself a mansion, my dream car jaguar f type r coupe, and the rest of the money which should be around 230k left I'll invest in real estate.

But since this takes more than 24 hours I'll just go all in BTC.

How would you buy $500k worth of BTC with cash in under 24hrs?

Yes. I can buy even 10mil in cash if I want to. Got dem whale connections so its easy to buy btc as long as you got the cash.

P2P.

Scooby - May 4, 2020, 3:58 pm

What currency do I have it in? I understand I can't deposit it to a bank but I also can't spend cash online. My first inclination is to spend the day arranging meetups to buy crypto for cash. There are also a few local establishments I would happily donate 100k to.

The Don - May 4, 2020, 3:59 pm

I'd put it all down on a parlay, if it hits I win, if not I'm down...

Well that debatable haha but so does renting tho haha buy a shed

Elfonzo - May 4, 2020, 4:08 pm

I think I would go for a nice yacht... also would buy a house instead of renting...

Gold or silver something with value

knowledge - May 4, 2020, 4:41 pm

I could live my whole life that 1 million dollars

Exposed74 - May 4, 2020, 4:45 pm

I'd buy diamonds. Then resell it the next day and boom, got it on my bank account. (buying diamonds with cash is quite usual)

th3c0rrupt3d0n3 - May 4, 2020, 6:52 pm

Bitcoin of course. If you cant buy that much because of limits, then buy some other stable shitcoins like USDT, USDC, PAX and then buy bitcoin with them.

Also a Chad Tesla Cybertruck because why not?

Ash Ketchum - May 4, 2020, 7:13 pm

go to as many pawn shops or mints as i could and buy large amounts of precious metal.

then once my 24 hours is up resell it all and bank the money

Boil - May 4, 2020, 7:24 pm

Buy stocks (; I would've profited half a million today if I would have invested in in one stock and would most likely triple it by thursday.

IPIKIN - May 4, 2020, 7:38 pm

I'd go to the airport and pay cash for a flight to China and make a huge order with my supplier for cash

Angela White - May 4, 2020, 7:39 pm

throw $1mil in btc

you said you can't deposit it in the bank, so just put it in BTC then withdrawal to your bank after the 24 hours is up.

Yin Yang - May 4, 2020, 8:06 pm

I'd get property and close on it fast with the cash

AcademyAwards - May 4, 2020, 8:10 pm

I would most likely spend most of it on stupid things as I am the type to waste money on many things I really don't need?

Sprinkle - May 4, 2020, 9:09 pm

Spend it all on Visa Gift Cards so that I have as long as I want to decide rather than the originally granted 24 hours period

Valdoking - May 5, 2020, 11:58 am

thank you guys you have give me good ideas :D

I would probably spend it on a car and a house here it doesn't take long at all to get ownership of anything.

I will buy from my husband a beans can for 1 milliomm. After 24 hours the milliomm will still be in my family.

Present - May 5, 2020, 12:25 pm

24 hours? I would put every cent in BTC

Kant Atta - May 5, 2020, 12:49 pm

I'd probably buy some clothes, a new computer, some furniture for my house, a new TV, some kitchen supplies, and then blow the rest on lottery tickets and blackjack

Bob White - May 5, 2020, 12:50 pm

I'd buy a half a million dollar house, and a few vehicles, ez pz.

MrJamesDean - May 5, 2020, 1:36 pm

Buy all the raw materials from a yard to build a home and fit it nicely. You could purchase it all and have it all delivered to a plot of land in the same day, and easily hit that million mark if you know what to buy and what kind of quality to go for.

There's an estate agent that can process purchases in hours if it's cash so I'd buy the most expensive house they have on the market for cash and the rest would be spent on clothes, second-hand cars (no paperwork) and a bunch of cool shit.

Oh believe me I know, purchasing a property in the UK is not too bad. The thing that takes time is surveying the house and a mortgage (if there's one involved).

Lrrr - May 5, 2020, 2:30 pm

I could blow a million bucks in vegas real fuckin` quick.

Omniscient - May 5, 2020, 2:51 pm

Easy, stop at every Gold store I can and buy every ounce imaginable. If I have to I could drive to a major city if I depleted local inventory. But most places probably have 100k+. Currently Gold is $1700 an ounce. You could buy about 40 pounds of it with $1m USD. That's about the size of small suitcase with the gold. Totally doable and easy enough to convert back to spending FIAT. Should lose less than 10%, more like 2-5% actually.

Quote:I'd buy diamonds

You just lost a huge amount of value. Diamonds are valuable but only tradeable in how you describe in the wholesale market.

SIM-4460064 - May 5, 2020, 3:17 pm

I would buy as many unlocked iPhones as I could then start a reselling business on eBay.

?ystem - May 5, 2020, 3:39 pm

Firstly, I would more than likely pay off the mortgage on the house I grew up in just as a way to say thanks for raising me so well. After then, I'd pay off the debts I feel I owe to my old friends, regardless of if they feel as if it's not warranted. From there, Give or take the additional donations to charities I believe to be genuinely legitimate, buying myself a house in full and ending with a lovely dinner. :)

Hero - May 5, 2020, 4:02 pm

Go to a watch shop and buy as many as i can. After the 24 hours are over, sell them.

Or just invest in gold or stocks. Tesla stocks seem to be good atm.

hfrocket1713 - May 5, 2020, 4:37 pm

Nah I can def buy a house and a car within a 24 hour day. Depends on who you know and how fast you can get it done.

Worse comes to worse I'd go crazy and buy something super expensive that I can resell quick. Like jewelry.

KinGxKeV - May 5, 2020, 7:22 pm

I'd buy $1,000,000 in electronics and have a 40 monitor setup for all the heckz

SIM-888979 - May 5, 2020, 8:45 pm

Great minds think alike.

and yes diamonds or any kind of gem or jewelry are a bad investment unless it's a high end watch some of those hold value.

a11s - May 6, 2020, 3:21 am

Buy 1 Million worth of BTC.

I mean... it is still spending, right? :D

Ombra - May 6, 2020, 3:24 am

#1 I'd buy a lot of expensive electronics until home gets completely filled, rent a van to move them at home, pay upfront a security company to protect home for a month. I will later (starting from the day after) resell these.

#2 Same as above but I'd buy jewels (including expensive watches)

#3 Same as above but I'd buy gift cards or other virtual goods that do not expire

All these will allow me to spend the $1M within the day, but recover it later on by reselling the stuff I've purchased. This will allow me to gain time to spend the $1M - "time cost" for longer terms investments. Time cost is given by the difference from price I paid for all the stuff above, to resale price in order to get back the money. Easy win.

mrknol - May 6, 2020, 3:25 am

Is it cash? Since you can't deposit it to bank or is it in Crypto?

- < Investments (put it anywhere from local dealer up to crypto-game) 100 - 500k
- < Giving people in 'need' money (100 people 1k) 100k
- < Car (second hand) 25 - 50k
- < Rest for savings

I'd spend the day buying the most expensive super cars off local classifieds like craigslist. Then I have assets I can resell.

Although, this begs the question, is the IRS or Government going to come after me in this hypothetical situation? Where did the money come from? Was it legal?

There would be a lot of factors that would determine how exactly I would spend the money.
