In elementary I did the "I stole your nose" to some autistic kid in my class and he started a shitstorm, and parents were called.

No idea what you're talking about. I was the popular kid at school. Everyone wanted to sit at the lunch table with me.

I was punished with homework, handed it in on time to a substitute teacher because the original teacher wasn't in (like forbear? Lol) and then because the sub teacher forgot to hand it in on time my original teacher called me a liar and I had to do a hour detention after school.

Oh and the homework was for physical education :) :) :)

rSM- - May 5, 2020, 11:53 am

I wouldn't say its a stupid reason, but in kindergarten I threw a chair at a deaf kid, stole his hearing aids, and locked the bathroom door from the inside out and lied about it even though my teacher saw me do it. Janitor had to come in and remove the entire lock from the door to fix it lol. Got suspended for the hearing aid and chair thing, but not for the lock. Also in 3rd grade I twisted a ketchup packet until the point it exploded through the top and landed in some girls hair and got a week's lunch detention for it. Broke some girls glasses on accident because she had dropped them and I happened to step on them at the exact same time she dropped them in the hallway and she threw a fit. Principal thought I broke it on purpose and called me a liar and I got suspended for 2 days. They told me I had to pay for em but never did.

luke - May 5, 2020, 11:56 am

There was this kid with anger problems or something in our class and he pissed me off by doing something.

I shouted out his Club Penguin password in the middle of class and the teachers had to hold him down because he was screaming and punching the desk and shit. He didn't know who shouted it out because everyone was being loud and talking at the time but one of the teaching assistants knew it was me and told me off at the end of the day.

dave soiutig - May 5, 2020, 11:59 am

Calling a teacher a fucking wanker, here is the kicker, it wasn't me, nobody did, he just had it in for me. But getting permanently expelled for getting caught doing buckets in the toilet was a stupid decision and we done it regularly, it was my cousin that said to a teacher she could smell it. No hard feelings tho.

flavoral - May 5, 2020, 12:03 pm

Oh yeah i forgot to say mine:

one of them was once me and friend came to the school early in the morning, we found that they put a new steel door to our building, we "got" a copy of the keys and locked everyone inside during the day, took some time till they found the correct keys to open the doors.

Present - May 5, 2020, 12:14 pm

A kid in our class used to fart on the regular and got sent to boys coordinator. The coordinator full arranged a parent meeting for this kid to stop farting LMFAO.

The dumbest thing I've done is pop 3 fart bombs in the bus on an excursion.

LORE - May 5, 2020, 12:27 pm

A girl pushed a male teacher and hit him, I recorded it and put it on snap. Got in trouble the next day cos you can hear me screaming "I got this all recorded". Secondary school days were the best lmao

Kant Atta - May 5, 2020, 12:29 pm

I got suspended twice in elementary school when we had a really shitty principal.

The first time was because I had a pocket knife. I didn't mean to bring it to school. I lived on 30 acres of land and didn't have access to the internet. So I spent my time in the woods. For some reason, I liked sharpening sticks and weighing down the ends to make spears. I'd just go outside, sharpen a stick into a spear, hike around my property for a while, and throw my spear at rotting tree stumps and things like that. It was a way to kill time. It was in my pants pocket when I went to school and I didn't know.

When I got to school, I didn't know what it was at first and grabbed it out of my pocket to look at it without really thinking. It was while we were at our desks, and I put it right back into my pocket. A kid behind me though who had special needs and was always a nuisance to the class completely freaked out and went to the principal. The principal didn't even call me down to the office right away. The first thing she did was call the cops and then called me down to the office. The cops seemed kind of confused about why they were there. I showed them the knife and told them why I had it and what happened when I brought it out, and they basically just left. The principal then suspended me for a day, I guess thinking she still had to do something even though the cops didn't care.

The second time I got suspended was because of the same kid. He was always moving from foster home to group home and back to a foster home, so this time he was sent to live with two male parents, a gay couple. I had no problem with this, but he wouldn't shut up about it. He kept interjecting into other people's conversations and interrupting class talking about how his parents were gay. This went on for over a month. Finally, after like the fifth time of him doing it just to me that day, I shouted at him, saying nobody gave a shit that his parents were gay. Of course, he instantly went running to the principal, who called me down to her office (thankfully not calling the cops this time) and suspended me for two days. This time I was just annoyed at her. I looked at her kind of shocked and said "Are you serious?" not really believing it. She nodded her and said yup, and then started saying something else, but the busses were leaving, so I just left.

The only time she didn't suspend me when I was expecting to be suspended was towards the end of the year. There was this kid who'd always do things to annoy me. This particular time he was following me around the schoolyard kicking my heels. I didn't really stand up for myself much back then since I was basically always seen as the bad kid and felt like I deserved it. But he just wouldn't stop. During the second recess, he was doing it again. It was probably halfway through the recess when I looked over and saw a girl I liked sitting with her friends. I don't know what it was but as soon as I saw her I snapped. I turned around and punched him in the face sort of all in one motion. I don't think that I was trying to show off or anything. I guess I just didn't want to feel humiliated like that in front of her.

I didn't realize though that a teacher on recess duty was standing right by me when I did it though. She instantly sent us both down to the office. I remember the walk there very well for some reason. The kid I punched was holding his nose, bleeding, and occasionally looked at me. He didn't at all seem pissed off though. His sister came running over and instantly started yelling at me and looking at her brother. I remember feeling great. I wasn't proud that I hit someone or anything, I just felt more confident about myself and it was a foreign feeling.

When we got to the office, he got called into her office first. I'm not sure what he told her but I feel like he told her the truth. She called me in next, and basically just told me that I should speak to a teacher or principal instead of using violence, but let me go back to class. Then I found out from one of the other students that he got suspended for a week.

After everything that went down he and I actually became best friends. The girl that was sitting with her friends ended up 'dating' me for a little bit, but it didn't really count given how young we were. Our dates mostly consisted of Mario Kart, which is still really enjoyable memories. His sister that was screaming at me also 'dated' me for a little while, but we didn't get to play Mario Kart together :/

Sorry for the long post, this thread just took me down memory lane.

We had this teacher that physically and mentally handicapped. I stole his wheelchair. He was crawling through the hallway while students stood by and filmed it.

I know this was a dick move; it was years ago, and I got a three-week suspension.

Worth it, though.

I had this mean Professor who taught AI his lectures are 7.00am in Mondays and Wednesday.

On this fateful day I went to a party on sunday and returned home drunk at 5.00am. I did not want to miss the lectures due to attendance counts for 20%. So I took a shower and drove straight to class and arrived there at about 6.10am and started sleeping.

I didn't write my name in the attendance register as I was the first person to enter the class and the lecture comes with the register. A few friends tried to wake me up when the lecture entered class but I was so wasted. They made a clown hat and placed over my head by the time I woke up it was 2pm with all lectures for the day done.

The next day everybody in class was laughing at me and it continue for the rest of the semester

Back in high school i was on what they called the "tech team" basically fixing teachers computers around the campus. But for the most part we just played games in the computer lab for the whole 2 hours. Well the teachers found out and they all walked in at once it was super awkward dont even remember what happend but i think we got out of it somehow with a good excuse as to why we were in there. ?

Alright,

The stupidest reason I got in-trouble at school and got detention was chewing gum! So One day I was hanging out with my girlfriend. I was drinking coffee and need gum, I was brand new to this school. A teacher saw me chewing gum and started yelling at me to throw away the gum and to go see him after school.

I went to his office after school and he told me I had 2 weeks of detention for an hour a day and I had to scrape gum off the sidewalk the whole time.

A guy everyone hated had his backpack put in a trashcan.

I was a small, quiet kid back then, and I guess he was looking for someone to blame, because he never figured out who did it.

The guy was a good friend of mine back then, and was also a quiet kid, and nobody believed he'd do anything wrong, ever.

His mom came to my parents house that day, and fuck, all the trouble I got into, for something I didn't even fucking do.

I don't know if my parents still believe I did it, but they for sure did back then.

It was a hot summer day while I was in high school. We had a dress code that was retarded and mostly everyone (from both students and teachers) didn't follow it. For example, guys had to wear pants even tho it's 40C outside. I went to the teacher's lounge with a friend to talk to some teacher and on our way back principal approaches us as she was coming from downstairs.

Look at me in 3/4 pants, khaki or whatever you call it (fabric stops below knees but you still have some air). She started to argue with me about the dress code, she gonna send me home to change blabla. I lost it and started flaming her back. Bitch was in a very very short skirt, not appropriate for even our girls which were 16-17, let alone for a woman in her 50s.

That resulted in some disciplinary actions which were all revoked by my head teacher. She hated the principal so that got me out of trouble. :D

Ohh I have a good one. I used to have a dark sense of humor, always making jokes when it probably wasn't appropriate back then, but it made me and my friends laugh so I would just do it.

We had a girl at school who was gaining weight fast, one who was really cute to begin with and was a cheerleader, classic skinny blonde but built like a model so was always known as "Hot Hannah" (not her name, but same kinda thing). So one day someone makes a comment about her looking chubby, and I just offhandedly said "she's been eating alllll the dicks" and it got a load of laughs but was noted down by a teacher. It turns out she'd been gangbanged by half the football team, had got pregnant, and there was a pic of her taking loads which was going round school, so the laughs were more about that but I'd had no idea. I get pulled into the principal's office, and spent a few hours getting shouted at by him and a guidance counselor, where they told me what had happened and I burst out laughing. I was suspended for three days, not for the joke but for laughing because my principal said the words, and I quote, "You told a room full of people that Hannah consumed many penises, and she did".

Part of the story ended up in the local news and she ended up leaving the area with her baby daddy, and as far as I know they're still together today.

So yeah, pretty lame story but ill share it anyways.

It was a snowy school day and rules say that all students have to be outside on lunch break.

So, my friends and i standing by door, freezing our butts off, were waiting for the bell to ring.

Thought to myself, lets make a snowball and hit my friend in the face with it.

What i didn't know was, that it was more ice than snow. Didn't throw it hard, but still managed to fuck him up.

Hit him right on the temple, and it immediately started to swell. He went to the principal to get it checked out and she accused me of doing that on purpose, even though they all said it was an accident.

Still hate that bitch to this day..

I remember my University had an online "zombie game". Where zombies would have to tag regular members and log our code online to register us as a zombie. I dodged the class president's tag, but he just messaged the school board and had be converted to a Zombie anyway. So I created a new account to look exactly like his, and messaged the board again saying he regretted lying and to turn me back into a Human. I then would relay all zombie insider knowledge to the humans and we ended up winning. I went a little far then editing his profile photo to inappropriate images and got called to the Deans office. She said that although she cannot prove this is me, she knows it. I remember holding my phone up to my face just out of habit and her telling me if I am recording her right now she is going to expel me. Ah good times. They no longer play this game

Shorter story is I started a Community Campus snapchat when Phantom was popular on JB devices. Would let people send me snaps, download them, then upload them to my story.. this became huge and very toxic as sex vids, drug sales, etc began to hit the story line. (This was about 6 years ago). Snapchat ended up actually closing the account themselves, but I would always advertise a backup (just a one number difference than the previous), and we ruined campus :)

The most stupid thing me and my group of friends got into a lot of trouble for when we were 14-15 was that we started a project that was to fill an electrical box in our hallway with random crap. The electrical box contained controls to the building's lights and ventilation etc and it for some reason had a hole on top, so we just dumped stuff in there. Pudding, toothpaste, gum, snow, sand, gravel, salt etc etc.. One day someone was gonna do maintenance on the box and of course, noticed the shitstorm that was going on in there. We were forced to clean it while teacher and janitor watched.

I almost got into trouble for hitting a kid with a beer bottle. He was fatass bully who thought it was funny to bring a bottle into the uni classroom and try to force it on students (literally in their mouth). Here I am minding my own business and he comes to me, tries to force that bottle onto me, I snatch it and hit him on his shoulder with it. He ran out of the campus as fast as the could. The cleaning up cleaned the broken glass and the Dean thought I should be expelled but found this funny as he got rid of the guy and there were a 1000 complaints about that kid. Like I said, 'almost kicked'.
