No, Shoppy is allowed, you're not just allowed to directly advertise it on your thread, doesn't matter if you're vendor or not, first the customer needs to accept contract, if you're vendor the template features makes it easier to all automate however, the concept doesn't change.

Customer --> Initiates Contract --> Send/Provide Shoppy link manually or automated through template.

Well, only v3ndors can use that template, it's basically the same point.

Its not the same point, you're saying like us Vendors can advertise our Shoppy link freely, we still can't, even if someone asks for it in PM, we ask them to first initiate contract because thats the rules and being Vendor doesn't give us a right to bypass that.

You got it wrong. I said only v3ndors can use shoppy since only they can use the contract template.

And you're still wrong, everyone can use Shoppy, you just need to provide it to your customer after they have accepted contract. Doesn't matter if its basic contract or contract template.

Just read rules mate.
