Thread: What's your most toxic trait ?

Inversed - May 12, 2020, 3:11 am

My most toxic trait is that I always laugh in serious moments, doesn't matter what's the situation even if im on a funeral if I see a slight grin i'd probably burst out laughing and I can't help it. ?

So what's yours ?

?ystem - May 12, 2020, 3:40 am

Oh God, I have more than one dude, it's not even funny. But I suppose it would be safe to say I'm a misanthropist in-the-making. Don't even try to hide it either, you just know it with my heavy sarcasm. I honestly am loving quarantine and the stay-at-home order because it fits in with how I avoid people like the plague. That is unless I actually like you, find you interesting, or a person with genuine individuality that doesn't follow the flock blindly. My heavy sarcasm, sense of humor, and general irritability lead me to essentially be a standup comedian.

It's just very, very, very difficult to properly convey my tone and everything as such online, so you may not notice it.

Mine is that people think that I don't take things seriously, for example if I would be in a burning building with a bunch of other people I would be the calm one. I'm always calm, don't get stressed or panic like most other people do and some really hate that part of me :3

I'm an arrogant piece of shit

Accord - May 12, 2020, 4:02 am

Is lack of time management consider a a toxic?? someone also says my laugh is annoying..

Im also like that and people get mad at me for not panicking which is bullshit. But that's a pretty good trait I guess, not everyone can remain calm in such situations lol.

I do agree, it's a good thing and most don't get it. Those who panic n stress out they usually get really disoriented when it really matters the most...unlike the calm people ;)

Even tho, sometimes it kinda feels like there would be something wrong with me when I'm so calm while everyone around me act like chicken...

I'd be thinking the same btw, but no it's a good thing really. Less emotions and stress = better life.

TheBlackKnight - May 12, 2020, 7:00 am

Procrastination counts? It mostly comes from my anxiety. I am pretty sure I got to-do lists as old as 2 yrs lol hfrocket1713 - May 12, 2020, 7:11 am

I suck with being on time when meeting up with people. I say I'll be there in 20 but I get there in 40. I've gotten better at it.

Also i can be sort of a mean person to my friends and say really cruel jokes that genuinely might make them feel bad.

I also try to sleep with virtually every girl decent looking who talks to me. But that's one trait I'm okay with but it is toxic nonetheless bevc - May 12, 2020, 7:15 am

I'm a very poor communicator, and I'm arrogant and self-righteous.

Bacardi Cola Lime - May 12, 2020, 7:16 am

I'd ssay procrastination is my worst trate. I find myself to constantly avoid doing thins at times and most of the time the regret is real.

Vibe - May 12, 2020, 7:16 am

My toxic trait is I get unreasonable upset/angry about stuff easily

Ash Ketchum - May 12, 2020, 7:17 am

All the traits people deem bad i deem good so i'm not sure.

But people dislike my arrogance/brutal honesty but that seems like their problem not mine.

MrJamesDean - May 12, 2020, 8:00 am

I'm the same way! I find things like funerals really tough because I tend to end up laughing at something, and the pressure of being respectful and quiet gets too hard, and I have to walk out for a bit which makes people think I'm crying lol.

?ystem - May 12, 2020, 10:55 am

Eh. I joke around a little too much at times, especially when it's supposed to be serious and certainly not an appropriate time to crack jokes. It's a defense mechanism, I seriously can't control it. It annoys people. Hell, it even annoys me.

Fuck sake im not alone it seems. I guess you understand me pretty well lmao.

Crypt - May 12, 2020, 12:55 pm

I'm the same way, OP. I once accidentally walked in on a funeral service when I was going to visit someone's grave and I turned out and walked out laughing. I felt bad after tho lol.

I have a few, so I let you decide what's worse;

< I have issues to treat the people as they should deserve to be treated (I am too kind for some 'unfriendly' or narcissistic people)

< I have issues to be unbiased or not cruel when something 'unfair' happens in life (I help you cross the road, so I don't expect you to stab me. So I'd love to stab you slowly to make sure you feel the same 'unfair betrayal' as I did!)

< I have issues to trust other people by their words, if I think their body language and/or routines are lying or telling me different (helped me a lot though)

Those are fictional examples of the scenarios that could happen which I find myself recognising my own toxic traits.. don't take them too seriously.

Those are the 3 'most toxic' in my eyes. I do got a temper, but so does Omniscient and he can run an empire like this, so my temper should be good for something in life, right? Passionate? Who knows! ?

I have no toxic traits. I'm perfect.

Insanity. Vanity. Or perhaps condescension.

What is the word we're looking for here? Joking my man, I love your post ?

Actually those seem pretty reasonable and I relate to all of them I must say. Not much of a back stabber or the one who would seek payback but yeah I also treat people in a way that I shouldn't or as you said "as they deserve".

I feel you my man :D

Haha I have tons of flaws.

Jealousy is a pretty big one I'm trying to work on.

Squanchy - May 12, 2020, 1:13 pm

I can't help but talk shit to people who deserve it. Especially in games. Play bad while I'm carrying? Better bet I am gonna flame you. I find when I flame people it makes me play better though idk.

I can't help myself on this one either. But I don't consider it my worst trait. Come on... Laughing at funerals should be the winner here.

I tend to laugh at inappropriate times too. I think it has something to do with how we handle/control our emotions.

That's true. But it's better this way no matter how "arrogant" it looks in others eyes. At least you are not overwhelmed with stress/anger and too much emotions overall.

Hahaha yeah I totally get the struggle man. I was like it throughout school too, whenever someone got in trouble or we were told to settle down because of some serious reason, that would really set me off and the slightest thing would have me laughing. I have this one memory of a time my buddy got in some trouble for throwing pencils and someone got hit in the cheek, and while he was getting yelled at a girl at the front of the class tossed her eraser in the air to catch it but it fell on the desk instead, and it reallllly made me laugh even though it wasn't funny at all. I tried explaining why I was laughing but of course no one bought it, so I ended up in more trouble than my buddy lol.

Lmao... So many years passed since I graduated high school but damn. You brought me some good memories about the past haha. I had similar moments as well.

When the teacher kicks us out with my buddy because we are laughing all the time and makes us stand outside the room in front of the door just to "laugh it off" when we are outside it's not funny at all but the moment we get inside we burst out laughing again.

No explanation for that either lol.

Hahahaha that's the story of my life man! I remember sooo many days stood out in the hall having to calm down, but as soon as I got back in I'd make eye contact with someone and start laughing all over again. When we got told one of our teachers died over the summer, I couldn't stop laughing at all, felt bad after but couldn't help myself!

Exalted - May 12, 2020, 2:21 pm

I very quickly become unreasonably mad.

SIM-2294117 - May 12, 2020, 2:30 pm

I don't really see it as a toxic trait but I have to be doing something constantly that gets the blood pumping or I will just get so incredibly bored.

I don't know honestly, I know I can be really toxic person but I don't know what's the trait. Maybe it's not valuing other people enough.

Stork - May 12, 2020, 2:37 pm

I get really mad at league of legends and get accounts permabanned.

Lol I would say I worry too much about the future and getting ahead of others (co-workers). I work in a fairly competitive field though.
