Thread: Kevin Hart On Positivity

A + - May 18, 2020, 11:32 pm

I've heard some motivational speeches before, and I somewhat still assert them in my life. I've always been a happy go lucky dude regardless, but when times get 10 kinds of damn that's rough, I don't break down like I'm sure tons of people would. Kevin Hart is a pretty inspiring dude, works out everyday etc. He's a pretty strong dude upstairs, and easy to relate to. I can vibe to it, check him out.

Yes Kevin is one of the many few people i respect or look up too. I have also had the privileged to meet him at my work super chill and humble (and short).

Kevin Heart has always had a unique way to spread positivity. His comedic style makes one feel really comfortable when listening to him.

Lol, good shot. Honestly though, how short is he? It can't be that bad ?

Yin Yang - May 19, 2020, 8:20 am

I see all that time with him and Dwayne 'The Rock' Johnson paid off lol. I never really saw Kevin as a motivational speaker, but def Dwayne.

He's a decent comedian, sometimes he's annoying. But he's a solid overall dude.

The dude is like 5ft 3 if i remember right, short as fuck ahaha but yeah generally he's a very entertaining dude to watch and can be very uplifting when speaks about the future and his plans and shite

Herbert - May 19, 2020, 8:33 am

Is it just me, or can I just not listen to him for more than 5 seconds and assume a joke is coming up?

I find Steve Harvey's motivational speeches hitting hard.

Man, that's good stuff. I didn't realize that he went through all of that. If that's not a success story, I don't know what is. Great share! (May 19, 2020 03:25 PM)B?????araka Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) But he sure is funny, I've been to one of his tour shows with my girl. Super fun times!!!

That's too cool. Are y'all hiring? I work with a cryptocurrency and one of the members of an 80s/90s rap group named Pharcyde was in our chat. He asked me to get on what's app and I had a conference call with them about promoting the crypto. I got selfie with them too lol, I grew up listening to those guys. I think I sold Snoop Dogg a pretzel when I was 14 working in the mall once. He was about a 7'11 giant, spitting image of Snoop. He sounded like him too, who knows. That's about as close as I've gotten to well known celebrities.

I mean he wasn't that tall, but he might as well have been ?. I just Googled it and Snoop is 6'4. I guess that could have been right. I'm 5'11, and all I know is that was a big dude.
