He probably sent it with a low fee so it never got confirmed, he'll have to send it again with a higher fee

Vuln - May 19, 2020, 1:20 pm

Low fee = slow confirmations. Even with a $5 fee it would still take several hours.

So you mean that it will never get confirmed in future also?

Most likely not, if the fee was too low.

That's why you never send it until the transaction is confirmed. Lesson learned I guess. You might get lucky, but generally if they don't confirm after 2 hours it's not going to go thru

It's not true.

OP. There is nothing you can do as of right now. Wait and see. BTC is having difficult times after halving.

I've had transactions go through after a day multiple times.

OP try using this tool, put in your hachee <https://hackforums.net/tools.php?action=bitcoinaccelerator>

I've had payments received that haven't confirmed in 3-4 days
it's probably btc being congested as they say again

i think you are right, i just can wait now. but its just $15, not much to worry about.

and i didnt send anything to buyer. because he upgraded his account on my website and he wont get any upgrade if i dont get any money.

2 days ago my own $5 fee transaction took hours.

Artificially - May 20, 2020, 5:08 am it was showing yesterday, its a $15 transaction and .50 cent was a fees.

but i dont know why its not showing any transaction, it was showing correctly yesterday. but i can see in my coinbase commerce wallet that the transaction is still pending :/ .

is there any chance that the buyer double spent and transaction didnt got confirmed ?

maxyomix - May 20, 2020, 7:23 am

You can always use this tool: bitaccelerate.com , it is an accelerator for bitcoin transactions in case they get stuck somehow ?

Ortek - May 20, 2020, 7:41 am

LOL

With a 50 cent fee thats going to take forever to confirm....and im sure most wallets warn you about it.

ETH - May 20, 2020, 8:10 am

Use the transaction accelerator Hope it works

Yes i was about to say that the tx is still there....as mentioned above.

Lets wait and watch ?

Hashrate is down, mempool is backed up

Once the difficulty adjusts (people speculate about 2-3 cycles of difficulty adjustment) we'll more than likely be back to normal.
