

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: What is being dead like? \(any of you ever been dead momentarily?\)

Jerry Smith - May 23, 2020, 5:04 am

I have always had this weird feeling about death, that it can't be any worse than sleeping w/o dreams. In both cases you're unconscious and time just passes right by you.

Have any of you experienced death? Even for a few moments? If so please share your experience.

???????????? - May 23, 2020, 5:07 am

Never experienced it but isn't it strange that it just ends somewhere? Like "Cut" thats the end of the road and everything is gone? Sometimes a thought that fucks me up because i don't know whats after. You know, do you even feel you're going? Or are the last minutes of brain activity just like a dream you have but you're not able to wake up?

SIM-4725719 - May 23, 2020, 5:14 am

Was shaving my balls it caught my skin and my life flashed before me :/

Exalted - May 23, 2020, 5:46 am

If you ask me, there's nothing. Once you're dead, you're gone.

Prawnster - May 23, 2020, 5:48 am

(May 23, 2020 05:07 AM)¢?n¢?? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Never experienced it but isn't it strange that it just ends somewhere? Like "Cut" thats the end of the road and everything is gone? Sometimes a thought that fucks me up because i don't know whats after. You know, do you even feel you're going? Or are the last minutes of brain activity just like a dream you have but you're not able to wake up?

Yeah it does seem scary, that's why people use the thought of religion or some form of belief that there is more beyond that "cut", like heaven or hell or whatever tf u believe in lmao. And apparently the last few minutes of brain activity are supposedly your head reliving all the memories from your life - Not sure how accurate that is, but it would be a nice few final images to see tbh.

???????????? - May 23, 2020, 5:51 am

Not into any religion at all. I just think its strange that it ends abruptly.

Jerry Smith - May 23, 2020, 6:50 am

So the consensus I'm getting is that it's pretty much just nothing

Exalted - May 23, 2020, 6:54 am

(May 23, 2020 06:50 AM)Jerry Smith Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) So the consensus I'm getting is that it's pretty much just nothing
Pretty much, yeah.

Bald - May 23, 2020, 6:55 am

(May 23, 2020 05:04 AM)Jerry Smith Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have always had this weird feeling about death, that it can't be any worse than sleeping w/o dreams. In both cases you're unconscious and time just passes right by you.

Have any of you experienced death? Even for a few moments? If so please share your experience.

You can try it and tell us how it's feel.

Seagulls - May 23, 2020, 7:01 am

When I was in my early teens I was always terrified of death. The thought would enter my mind and almost petrify me for some reason. However, after thinking about it for a long time I am now totally at peace with the concept of death. If I was told tomorrow I only had 1 year to live I'd be upset of course but not scared. Yes, I believe there is nothing after death.

Once, I had a drinking session and walked into a door and fell backwards and smashed my head on the floor. I was unconscious for about a minute but had some sort of dream where I was floating towards the sky. Maybe I was momentarily dead IDK but it took me weeks to recover from that fully.

Mr Kewl - May 23, 2020, 7:28 am

(May 23, 2020 05:04 AM)Jerry Smith Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have always had this weird feeling about death, that it can't be any worse than sleeping w/o dreams. In both cases you're unconscious and time just passes right by you.

Have any of you experienced death? Even for a few moments? If so please share your experience. Since 2012, I've never felt alive brother.

I have gone through a lot of moments when I could've met with an accident which would end badly but most of the time I've been saved idk how.

Perileos - May 23, 2020, 7:31 am

A friend of mine had a heart attack, he was out of it. Not sure if "momentarily" dead but he felt like he was "floating" when he woke up and just didn't remember any of the ordeal.

He was given CPR right on time.

Bacardi Cola Lime - May 23, 2020, 7:34 am

Haven't experienced it momentarily but it's something that bothers me. How is it? What happens to you and your conscience?