"Chinese prisoners were forced into 'gold farming' – building up credits on online games such as World of Warcraft."

just read this old article after digging into game currencies and the black market. I was wondering if there are any other games worth getting into to make some money by botting/farming other than WoW, runescape.

Now that's a first. Never heard of such punishment before. It shows the corruption of Chinese correctional institutions. They imprison people to use them as slaves.

Sounds like an interesting read. I am also interested in games that currently have strong economy. Looking forward to try out a new venture, write a script and see if it goes somewhere.
