

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Hypothetical question

Megatron - May 27, 2020, 8:29 pm

I was browsing around on Quora, the popular question and answer site, and came across a really interesting question:

Your cruel parents kicked you out of the house when you were 15. Now, as an established adult, they lost their jobs and house and would like to move in with you. Would you let them move in?

I don't know if I would let them move in. If they kicked me out at 15 for no reason, that might be enough for me to resent them. I guess it all depends on if we'd made amends and built a better relationship over the years.

Dorrance - May 27, 2020, 8:31 pm

At the end of the day those are your parents without them you wouldn't be here.

Bald - May 27, 2020, 8:47 pm

(May 27, 2020 08:29 PM)Megatron Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I was browsing around on Quora, the popular question and answer site, and came across a really interesting question:

Your cruel parents kicked you out of the house when you were 15. Now, as an established adult, they lost their jobs and house and would like to move in with you. Would you let them move in?

I don't know if I would let them move in. If they kicked me out at 15 for no reason, that might be enough for me to resent them. I guess it all depends on if we'd made amends and built a better relationship over the years.

You ask the questions, whats your own answer?

Megatron - May 27, 2020, 8:52 pm

(May 27, 2020 08:47 PM)Bald Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You ask the questions, whats your own answer?

My answer is included on my thread. I'm more interested in what others have to say, since I've already had time to think about this question.

B?????araka - May 27, 2020, 9:06 pm

My heart wouldn't let me just see them struggle like that. Now if they ask for money for something other than essentials or just like a favor loan, i would say NO.

Megatron - May 27, 2020, 9:07 pm

(May 27, 2020 09:06 PM)B?????araka Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) My heart wouldn't let me just see them struggle like that. Now if they ask for money for something other than essentials or just like a favor loan, i would say NO.

Totally understand, it's a chance to be the bigger person and show them good will. Although, yeah, directly asking for money is a bit much.

B?????araka - May 27, 2020, 9:24 pm

(May 27, 2020 09:07 PM)Megatron Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Totally understand, it's a chance to be the bigger person and show them good will. Although, yeah, directly asking for money is a bit much.

Its a tough spot to be put in. I would def nee an apology too.

MarvinMalware - May 27, 2020, 9:38 pm

I want to say I would let them but I'm not really sure, it would really depend on why I was kicked out and their situation. At the end of the day though I can't imagine watching my parents struggle and not doing anything about it, so more than likely I would let them.

eXceptional - May 27, 2020, 10:01 pm

You should learn to accept whatever your parents do for you. They have more experience and they always know what is best for their child.

Aklimczak522 - May 27, 2020, 11:06 pm

I would let them for a day, and kick them out then, too.

Megatron - May 28, 2020, 7:44 am

(May 27, 2020 09:38 PM)Shoto Todoroki Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I want to say I would let them but I'm not really sure, it would really depend on why I was kicked out and their situation. At the end of the day though I can't imagine watching my parents struggle and not doing anything about it, so more than likely I would let them.

Yeah, that's what I think and what other people who I've asked think. It depends on what happened when they kicked you out and the exact type of person they are. On Quora, surprisingly, there were a lot of older people responding who said they wouldn't help their parents at all.

MarvinMalware - May 28, 2020, 8:07 am

(May 28, 2020 07:44 AM)Megatron Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah, that's what I think and what other people who I've asked think. It depends on what happened when they kicked you out and the exact type of person they are. On Quora, surprisingly, there were a lot of older people responding who said they wouldn't help their parents at all.

Yeah I believe it, everybody's different some people wouldn't think twice and some would laugh in their faces. I actually scroll through Quora way too often myself it get's addicting there's a lot of stuff on there like this that really makes you think.

Bacardi Cola Lime - May 28, 2020, 9:10 am

Nah I think I wouldn't even bother. I keep the hard feelings when someone doesn't treat me right, no exclusions.

Glein Snow - May 28, 2020, 9:16 am

(May 27, 2020 08:31 PM)Dorrance Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) At the end of the day those are your parents without them you wouldn't be here.

I completely agree with you Dorrance

Xen - May 28, 2020, 9:48 am

I would never abandon my parents, regardless of what they did. I'd let them in until they get back on their feet.

Megatron - May 28, 2020, 10:02 am

(May 28, 2020 09:48 AM)Xen Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I would never abandon my parents, regardless of what they did. I'd let them in until they get back on their feet.

I guess this shows the unconditional love that one typically has for their parents. I asked my parents this same question and they basically said the same thing as you.

Nath - May 28, 2020, 10:06 am

Definetly not. I'm a very bitter person.

Xerotic - May 28, 2020, 10:11 am

(May 27, 2020 10:01 PM)eXceptional Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You should learn to accept whatever your parents do for you. They have more experience and they always know what is best for their child. Bad thinking.

Assuming parents are inherently correct is a huge problem. There are horrible parents out there who don't know how to raise children. Who don't know what is best.

I could never subscribe to somebody's command in such entirety no matter who they are to me.

eXceptional - May 28, 2020, 10:28 am

(May 28, 2020 10:11 AM)Xerotic Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Bad thinking.

Assuming parents are inherently correct is a huge problem. There are horrible parents out there who don't know how to raise children. Who don't know what is best.

I could never subscribe to somebody's command in such entirety no matter who they are to me. I believe something bad happened with you. I don't want to be sad hearing your side of the story but yes you are right that some parents do not know how to raise their children and I'm sure out of 100 there are only approx 5 who don't eventually learn how to but the rest do.

Frono - May 28, 2020, 10:41 am

If I was in the financial situation to do so, yes. They took care of me for 15 years. I would want a chance to have a family rather spend the rest of my life hating them.

2xTheTap115 - May 28, 2020, 11:28 am

(May 27, 2020 08:29 PM)Megatron Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I was browsing around on Quora, the popular question and answer site, and came across a really interesting question:

Your cruel parents kicked you out of the house when you were 15. Now, as an established adult, they lost their jobs and house and would like to move in with you. Would you let them move in?

I don't know if I would let them move in. If they kicked me out at 15 for no reason, that might be enough for me to resent them. I guess it all depends on if we'd made amends and built a better relationship over the years.

I would probably let them because it would be my family. And I feel very emotional about such topics, so my answer is yes?