please keep in mind i understand the value of a good coded email bomber that at most (good one) will cost 20 a month however with setting up the smtp and then getting the license for the bomber and then the rdp/vps it becomes a bit to do, because i dont want to go through all that even though its not complex or a major investment its a simple inconvenience for you let alone a task and you need to be compensated for all these reasons and being i really despise the person who we will email bomb and the fact i make good dough i will give you 20 dollars to email bomb one email address hard i mean hard smack that shit back to 2010 lol my only concern is that it doesnt go to spam this is a business email not security like gmail or john@capitalone but it has basic security from a small business domain im sure a good email bomber will pass.

lets not make it complicated take care of him and get paid we both win its over. me paying 20 dollars isnt the problem its him getting spammed is my cconcern.
