Thread: How to intercept a phone verification code?

bentleyboy55 - May 29, 2020, 8:51 am

I have a gmail that is suspended and they keep giving me the message that they can't verify that it belongs to me.

The only verification question I am asked is a phone verification number which is an old phone number of mine from a few years ago that I don't have anymore, but I do know the number.

I have heard that verification codes can be intercepted or something like that and am posting here to see if you guys would be able to help me.

cheers

SIM swapping I assume?

Not sure how well that would work lol

As the user above me said SIM swapping, if you can't, I guess you can say goodbye to your Gmail account.

Please do note that SIM swapping is a crime & people have been arrested for it.
