

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Anyone still making money content locking? phpmaster1 - May 31, 2020, 6:36 am

Back after long break, what works these days? things seem lot differently

CPA Exposé - May 31, 2020, 1:54 pm

Same general idea as before. Just need to learn what the new methods are for ranking on platforms.

V.V.V.V.V - June 1, 2020, 12:52 pm

As Crumbs above say. much of the old remains.

Especially depending on which niches you have of course. But you have these typical niches like everything that has to do with Giftcards, Subscriptions and game cheats/hacks that will never die out as long as you keep up with new releases and update to what's popular at the moment.

Something I have had some good results with lately Is audible and things related to audio books, Also look into new games and cheats for these games. One good tip is to not only claim you will give it away for free only. Make a legit looking site and make it look like you offer a professional cheat that cost's money but the catch is that you will be "offering a 7 days Trial" , Here is where the content locker comes in.

These are some ideas that have worked well for me in recent months. So hope you get some inspiration and good luck!

For traffic sources Youtube are still good.

For regular ads Facebook/instagram is pretty good if you have your own domains and landing pages.

For dating/adult I recommend: TrafficJunky and TrafficFactory if you are into ads, Other then that snapchat is still very powerful.

phpmaster1 - June 2, 2020, 4:45 am

Thanks boys, feel much better now.

too bad YouTube is so tough to rank, nothing compares to YT when it comes to conversions