Thread: A neighbor has set his alarm clock early but doesn't wake up

James Burnham - June 1, 2020, 7:19 pm

I am hearing the same annoying sound for 15 mins now. Should I go knock their door?

Billy The Kid - June 1, 2020, 7:22 pm

Yeah and tell police department. I bet he will wake up

A + - June 1, 2020, 7:29 pm

What a pain in the ass lol. After 15 minutes... You could be nice and give him another 5 minute courtesy gap, or just go knock now. I would wake him up eventually though.

"Elaine can't sleep because her neighbor forgot to turn off the alarm clock before leaving for Paris."

Oh man, I hope it's not a situation like this.

Its a funny one u should watch it, they try to create a short circuit to damage the alarm clock :), maybe you could try turning down / up the electricity?

Sorry my english is not that good I dont know the exact term

Neon™ - June 1, 2020, 7:47 pm

I can't imagine the same happening to me without hearing the alarm. Even the slightest sound wakes me up lol so such people like your neighbor are always weird to me.

B?????araka - June 1, 2020, 11:26 pm

i would be so annoyed lol, but tbh that sound just like me. I'm a very heavy sleeper.

Or maybe call the cops on him.
I love your avatar looks dope .

When I was a teenager I had a neighbor who used to do the same exact thing, my stepfather used to stand in the driveway and scream "fuck off" til he woke up. It became an everyday thing for about a full summer, quite an awful experience. Yeah OP go wake his ass up don't let it keep going man.

Lorem Ipsum - June 2, 2020, 3:22 pm

Play a horn-sound on YouTube loudly. Or a gun-shot.

If he still doesn't wake up, go knock on the door or ring the door-bell if possible. But be polite, you never know what's happening next door.

Megatron - June 2, 2020, 3:24 pm

If it's an everyday issue, I would definitely talk to him. No reason for it to be that loud and going on for that long. Hopefully he cooperates.

Bacardi Cola Lime - June 2, 2020, 3:36 pm

Things would be much easier if the alarm was on his phone. Giving him a call would stop it.

Call police on what alarm?

MightyOne - June 3, 2020, 12:30 am

You should go hack his network, and everytime the alarm is on, all the speakers should work aswell on the house.

I hate when mf'ers does this! WAKE THE GOD DAMN UP

If it bothers you in your daily life, I think it's worth asking your neighbors to silence it?

Would that for just a day or do you often hear it for quite some days?

Maybe he just take some sleeping pills or really tired and can get up to bed because he was into a deep sleep ???

bevc - June 3, 2020, 1:35 am

Go and have a polite word with him. A few years ago I had a neighbour, I think he must have been partially deaf or something, because he would put on football (soccer) highlights REALLY loudly at night-time, and it would play for hours, and it felt like it was right by my head. But the guy was disabled, so I didn't feel right about going and yelling at him.

Eagle 95 - June 3, 2020, 2:11 am

Or just live in a place that has actual walls?

I don't think anything can be done if your neighbor is a heavy sleeper and he has trouble waking up.

Maybe something happened. Heard an alarm clock for like 20 mins once at 3 AM and it turned out the guy had to go to the ER at night and forgot to turn the alarm clock (the old ones) off.
