Thread: hackforum password leaked

Huolsam - June 2, 2020, 11:28 am

Hi,

i tried to check my username for data leak in leakpeek, and i found one of my old password is leaked.

The database source is hackforum.

probably from like 2014 or 2017 or whatever that breach was.

Soulmate~?? - June 2, 2020, 11:34 am

You should probably change your passwords then if you use the same one anywhere else

Huolsam - June 2, 2020, 11:43 am yeah i do, just i shocked when i saw my old pasword.

Wrong forum.
This is Hf wiki talks

Wrong forum and probably the 2009 leak which is outdated, you didn't change your pass for 11 years ?

Eiji - June 2, 2020, 11:58 am

The hackforums database breach is very old so unless you're a multiaccounter you aren't on it.
If you are on it it's not like the site can really do anything, just change your password anywhere you use it and as a general tip never reuse passwords, use a password manager or write them down on a piece of paper.

Xerotic - June 2, 2020, 12:07 pm

The event was from 2011 and all passwords have since been required to be reset here. As safe practice you should use a different password for each unique service you use.

Elitas - June 2, 2020, 1:46 pm

It shouldn't really matter if you don't use the same password for everything.

Or the same password from pre-2011.

Lmaooo,He reminds me of my parents then. They still try and use the old passwords form 2005 ?
Luckily I help them now with there security?

CONN3X10N - June 2, 2020, 5:51 pm

Dang... been a long time since I used HAcKforums.

Looking a lot better now :D

Omniscient - June 2, 2020, 10:14 pm

I'm laughing if OP hasn't changed his password in a decade and even worse if he used an HF password across other sites too. Jeez.

I really hope OP didn't think he stumbled upon some major conspiracy and was shedding the light on it only to find out his password is just a decade old. ?

This is almost good enough to add to your compilation thread. :p

Bro mine too. My mother still does the old trick of writing her passwords down on the back of an envelope from 2009 and then proceeds to wonder why she can never find her password.. Parents are great lmao.

That and for some reason people in our parents generation seem to like keeping their passwords written down on a sticky-note inside their top-right or left desk drawer.

Yeah I suppose. Still a notable statement though lol.

Or incorrect, so when you forgot what it is, it tells you "Your password is incorrect" ?

I feel like that one has just become a modern meme at this point lol, have seen that comment posted on YouTube videos and random reddit posts as well.
