You can find some dataleaks if you search on pastebin most likely. They are available for free.

TheBrokenWasp - June 7, 2020, 12:00 pm

<https://intelx.io/> is my favorite doomkit - June 8, 2020, 3:42 am

Article from school of privacy give you full detail about site that you can use for db search some offer full access with "cheap price" here you can check for it, "

<https://school-of-privacy.com/post/184016209866/database-lookup-sites-list>". or you can visit (neighborhood/rival forums ?) Raidforums they well...have very large db in there.

I sugest you also prepared softwares for managing and opening db and free up some your disk space.

bob_lazar79 - June 9, 2020, 10:21 pm

@doomkit. Thank you very much dude. The site looks pretty good

55nic - July 21, 2020, 3:56 am

Hello all, I'm very interested in getting any links to these websites. Think some of my information was leaked as a few of my accounts were comprised recently and would like to see if I can find if my info is on any databases.

They closed search for people who is not paying.

perisik - July 26, 2020, 6:02 am

Here are some Google dorks that might help:

intext:"INSERT INTO users" site:pastebin.com
intext:"gmail.com" site:pastebin.com

Just copy and paste it into Google. They are mostly not database dumps, but they contain a lot of credentials if that's what you were looking for

Also looking for these links.

I checked out the intelx suggestion on page 1, and it looks great, but 2,000 Euros to view lists that arent 3+ years old is nuts.

AncientGod - January 6, 2022, 3:54 am

Raidforums is the place where you find such stuff

Maadcat - January 7, 2022, 2:42 am

Yes , you can find all on raidforum, what specific base do you need maybe we have it here

Liberatino - January 7, 2022, 12:07 pm

I've been using Le@kcheck, and it works pretty damn well, at a very affordable price and decent daily limits (200 successful searches per day. They don't count it against you if the search renders no results). They also have a keyword email search (25 per day) that helps to find emails from partial info.
