Sad day for us

yeah I saw that I lost over like $150 today.

Thing is, it'll go back up here soon. I know it will eventually break 10k and stay. I'm probably just going to go put more money into it once it drops a little more.

CryptoBot - June 11, 2020, 10:28 am

It's nice for me, these dips are triggering my DCA's nicely.

noname12345 - June 11, 2020, 10:31 am

Maybe this is the dip we needed for a massive pump coming! Hopefully!!! ??????

these levels werent tested since the bull trend started, it had to happen at some point+ stock market dropped hard

now we in coinflip either goes to 8800 or goes back to 9500 imho

Zeno Sama - June 11, 2020, 11:03 am

Well we cannot break 10k so we must go somewhere else

if the stock market didnt drop like crazy today it would still go sideways and keep testing resistance until its actually broken just saying

Yup, a pity the fed kept printing money, pumped the SPX to where it definitely shouldn't have been considering the global circumstances. A correction was only in order but a shame it broke Bitcoin's upward trend with it.

Cooldudex - June 11, 2020, 3:45 pm

This your guys' first time seeing crypto dump or?...

Kill Joy - June 11, 2020, 5:09 pm

The correlation between the stock market and Bitcoin is now too much.

Factoring in taxes, I much rather put money into tax advantage accounts such as 401k, IRA, HSA, etc., than specifically into Bitcoin itself.

noureddinemerradou - June 11, 2020, 7:52 pm

Btc went down because the share market just dumped. Many shares were overpriced and the market is just realising it

Btc will rise again when the share market stabilises to a new norm .

It's the end of the week , I expect another dip before we take off , next target 8K
