

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Gonna quit my job

SIM-587985 - June 14, 2020, 2:13 am

I've decided that even though I make really good money at my job, I'm going to try to make it on my own in the big bad world. I've got a few websites that aren't profiting yet because I can't put the time I need to into them.

I have built an off grid tiny house, leaving my monthly expenses at $200.

Does anybody have any advice who has done this before?

Any income ideas?

I've spent over 2000 on guides and methods on hf, and to be honest most of them were sub par.

MightyOne - June 14, 2020, 2:27 am

First of all make sure you have everything you need before you quit.

a house isn't enough. make sure it equipped with everything needed, from cleaning equipment and tools to food and other utilities you might need.

then, make sure you plan your days to maximize your work ! if you plan on working independently to make a living then its your duty to be efficient as possible!

Don't give up easily, it will be hard but worth it eventually!

MarvinMalware - June 14, 2020, 3:12 am

Hey man I'm quitting my job this week too! They treat me like absolute shit and don't pay me well at all. I barely make enough to get by.

Honestly always wanted to do what you're doing so go you man, as long as you have this really thought out why the hell not?

Rally the Bulls - June 14, 2020, 3:14 am

I've only ever said fuck you to one job. Everything in me says don't do it, but you know your situation better than I do.

crixus - June 14, 2020, 3:17 am

Learn shopify or dropshipping don't buy on hf buy from real guys outside gf who have tons of reviews will send you link on convo

i remember that i bought from vyrz out of curiosity methods to make $500 a day before few years from Vyrz

and he link to freebitcoin faucet and tell to be an exchanger on HF lmao

Vitello - June 14, 2020, 3:24 am

(Jun 14, 2020 02:13 AM)Wardyn Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I've decided that even though I make really good money at my job, I'm going to try to make it on my own in the big bad world. I've got a few websites that aren't profiting yet because I can't put the time I need to into them.

I have built an off grid tiny house, leaving my monthly expenses at $200.

Does anybody have any advice who has done this before?

Any income ideas?

I've spent over 2000 on guides and methods on hf, and to be honest most of them were sub par.

I salute you sir.

Quitting your job is not as easy as it sounds, especially if you are doing well and getting a good salary.

It is brave of you to follow your dreams and I think too few people do so.

I quit my job last year, to take a degree as a web developer. It was a difficult decision, but I haven't regretted it once.

In order to get success I think you have to ask yourself, what are you really passionate about and what can you see yourself doing for the rest of your life?

That question took me many years to answer, but once you get the answer you'll wake up as a happier man. ?

Bacardi Cola Lime - June 14, 2020, 4:11 am

It's a ballsy decision but if you are certain it will pay off then go do it. High risk decisions are hard to make but it's a good thing you are going for the high reward as well.

bevc - June 14, 2020, 4:16 am

Have you got solar panels and that kind of thing? If you have renewable energy and grow your own veggies etc, you can reduce your monthly expenses to almost nada.

Do you have some money saved up? Bear in mind that most people going into business on their own can't afford to pay themselves for a couple of years, so you need some money to cover you, or you'll be straight back to the rat-race.

If you have IT skills, one overlooked method of working for yourself, is simple pound the pavement for a few hours in your area - print up some flyers, and just go around knocking on the door's of local businesses. Guaranteed that if you do it long enough, you'll find some customers. Good luck.

ETH - June 14, 2020, 4:42 am

(Jun 14, 2020 02:13 AM)Wardyn Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I've decided that even though I make really good money at my job, I'm going to try to make it on my own in the big bad world. I've got a few websites that aren't profiting yet because I can't put the time I need to into them.

I have built an off grid tiny house, leaving my monthly expenses at $200.

Does anybody have any advice who has done this before?

Any income ideas?

I've spent over 2000 on guides and methods on hf, and to be honest most of them were sub par.

(Jun 14, 2020 03:12 AM)Shoto Todoroki Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hey man I'm quitting my job this week too! They treat me like absolute shit and don't pay me well at all. I barely make enough to get by.

Honestly always wanted to do what you're doing so go you man, as long as you have this really thought out why the hell not?

Really it is the wrong decision

Better stay on the job do some other work to earn money

Driz - June 14, 2020, 4:51 am

Keeping it light here but daaamn bro your ebook sales been that good eh?

On the real though, my main goal right now is to earn enough capital so I can start a proper business. I'd suggest you to do the same man. If you need some tips, hit me up in convo.

MarvinMalware - June 14, 2020, 4:56 am

(Jun 14, 2020 04:42 AM)ETH Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Really it is the wrong decision
Better stay on the job do some other work to earn money
I already have a new job lined up making just under double what I'm making now. I wouldn't make the mistake of sacrificing my only income for nothing.

ETH - June 14, 2020, 4:57 am

(Jun 14, 2020 04:56 AM)Shoto Todoroki Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I already have a new job lined up making just under double what I'm making now. I wouldn't make the mistake of sacrificing my only income for nothing.

This really good thing really without anything quitting job is really waste

Filthy Frank - June 14, 2020, 5:00 am

(Jun 14, 2020 02:13 AM)Wardyn Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I've decided that even though I make really good money at my job, I'm going to try to make it on my own in the big bad world. I've got a few websites that aren't profiting yet because I can't put the time I need to into them.

I have built an off grid tiny house, leaving my monthly expenses at $200.

Does anybody have any advice who has done this before?

Any income ideas?

I've spent over 2000 on guides and methods on hf, and to be honest most of them were sub par.

Rule #1 don't buy ebooks

Why would they saturate their own revenue stream?

I've got a few questions for you because I'm just interested.

Why do you want to quit your well paying job?

Will you have internet in your off the grid house?

Why are you going to live off the grid?

Have you tried dropshipping yet?

MarvinMalware - June 14, 2020, 5:00 am

(Jun 14, 2020 04:57 AM)ETH Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This really good thing really without anything quitting job is really waste

I agree I think it's a bit outlandish to quit and risk financially screwing yourself. At least make sure you can be stable and support yourself prior to making this choice.

VisualSoft - June 14, 2020, 5:01 am

Hard time and recession is coming up, so think twice before leaving your job, cause if you want to join back after leaving, you wont be able to do it.

Angela White - June 14, 2020, 5:19 am

Good for you doing that, having a 9-5 sucks.

If you need help with shit let me know I'll help you out for free :)

Velma - June 14, 2020, 5:20 am

Good Luck in you next chapter in life, Only thing i would suggest that you do is be prepared for the worst, a idea for you is to start an online business in something that you are good at or like or even maybe do some dropshipping.

menato - June 14, 2020, 5:27 am

Really hard times on a job market right now.

But you know, a man can survive even on a lonely island, so if you have a bright head and ambitions, you will find your way

A + - June 14, 2020, 7:08 am

(Jun 14, 2020 02:13 AM)Wardyn Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I've decided that even though I make really good money at my job, I'm going to try to make it on my own in the big bad world. I've got a few websites that aren't profiting yet because I can't put the time I need to into them.

I have built an off grid tiny house, leaving my monthly expenses at $200.

Does anybody have any advice who has done this before?

Any income ideas?

I've spent over 2000 on guides and methods on hf, and to be honest most of them were sub par.

You are going to have to invest a good amount of time into it to get started. I have heard a lot of people that have success with dropshipping, but you have to figure out your own system. Different types of marketing such as affiliate/CPA can be useful but requires time and it can be tedious setting up and managing multiple websites. Starting an online business would be a good way to go, but to survive it needs to be well thought out and in demand. There is ways that you can make good money on the Internet, but I would make sure that systems are in place and you are already making profit before you quit your job.

By the way, how are you living off of $200? Assuming that you own the property, food, water, electricity, and Internet is already a good chunk of that. Car insurance, car payments, health insurance, brother that's adding up quick.

Wespa - June 14, 2020, 7:12 am

Make yourself financially stable before doing that. Don't buy guides off HF.

Maskin - June 14, 2020, 7:14 am

I assume you've saved some money, especially if you have/had a high paying job. If you don't have money saved, keep your job for now and save up some money is what I'd do.

shakur123 - June 14, 2020, 7:21 am

Wow boss i always want to live off the grid, i watch very show showing this and i love it, make sure to get all stuff working and ready, congrats on this!! And good luck in your new income / job project!!

SIM-587985 - June 14, 2020, 11:03 am

(Jun 14, 2020 07:12 AM)Wespa Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Make yourself financially stable before doing that. Don't buy guides off HF.

I have a bunch saved up, and my expenses are hella low, Anything worth anything I've either payed very high for or came up myself.

But I kinda made up my mind. I refuse to sacrifice my health or my happiness for a job. And I've just got a gut feeling I can do it better.

sweatpants - June 14, 2020, 11:09 am

I wish you the best of luck man I've known a couple people who live off grid that own their own business and have a source of income and they love not having any people bossing them around truly living their best life tiny homes are sick as fuck I wouldn't mind living in one if i could

SIM-587985 - June 14, 2020, 5:10 pm

(Jun 14, 2020 12:01 PM)James! Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It's kind of awesome how you're able to reduce your monthly expenses to $200 - I love it!

Would it not be a good idea to stick it out for a few more months while this coronavirus situation is happening so you know you have a reliable income and then quit?

And never buy an ebook related to making money on HF lol.

I planned on staying for 2 to 3 more months. I'm trying to train daleks to replace me before I put in my 3 weeks, I just simply decided that I hope to expand. I'm tired of being stagnant.

Who Soup - June 14, 2020, 5:54 pm

I wouldn't quit just in case things don't work out. The way I did it was I worked my normal job during the days and would work on my other projects at night. You should quit only when you're making a consistent income that you're comfortable with. If you quit in the beginning there's nothing supporting you when problems arise, it would be smarter to keep some sort of cash flow in the mean time.

Simplex - June 14, 2020, 6:33 pm

I always say make sure to have something lined up before you quit. Loss of income can really hurt.

Lindros - June 14, 2020, 7:24 pm

This sounds pretty cool. A lot of people dream of doing this. I would say don't burn the bridge entirely, at least two week notice and try to have a back up plan in case things don't work out.

Sly Cooper - June 14, 2020, 10:14 pm

Honestly, if you plan to work on your websites full time, I'd suggest saving enough for however long you plan to not be making enough profit to sustain yourself. Then save a bit more. Always put in your two weeks and ask for a reference letter.

FFcom - June 15, 2020, 12:08 am

That's a bold decision, and I'm sure that it's the right one too. You'll make more than you can handle in no time.

Good luck!

Sanchochi - June 15, 2020, 1:30 am

Just keep in mind that if winning money online was easy everyone was going to do it instead of working
If you know what you are doing and your confident that you can win money online, sure leave your work but if you are a beginner it will be rough funtela - June 15, 2020, 8:41 am

I wouldn't quit your job until you have a guaranteed source of stable income

Ivex - June 15, 2020, 8:44 am

Social media.

- Instagram niche page (my main source of income atm).
- YouTube account documenting your journey from quitting your job until achieving financial freedom working on your businesses.
- Make a TikTok a day as cringy as the platform may be, it's growing like crazy.

But yeah before you quit your job, make sure you have 6-12 months of expenses saved for.

SIM-587985 - September 9, 2022, 8:51 am

I just wanted to let everyone know that quitting may have been the best decision I have made in a while.

What I was doing for income didn't work out as long term as I hoped, just like you all said.

I ended up on amazon, and I did pretty well. I had to stop working with it due to an opportunity that arose if I move regularly, but I don't really wanna go in to much detail about that. I didn't realize I forgot to cancel my amazon account before I left (Only had 3 days notice to leave), and It has made enough to pay for all the monthly charges and an extra chunk of change that I hadn't even realized was being added to my account.

SIM-587985 - September 9, 2022, 10:45 am

(Sep 9, 2022 10:32 AM)phantomman55 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) All you need to do is find another job that pays more. This was an old thread, I just think I told someone on here that I would check back afterwards. I would have just messaged them but IDK who it was.

But Fr quitting was the best decision of my life.

(Sep 9, 2022 10:38 AM)shatter Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) you fail to sell any packs and become a coomer
What is a coomer?