The silence is broken what did Dr. Disrespect Say?

Code See updates below.

[Original story 6/27/2020]

It's been a weird week for the video game community. And I mean weirder than a normal week, which is usually already pretty strange.

Things kicked off with some startling accusations about Destiny 2 streamer SayNoToRage which quickly overflowed into a budding #MeToo movement that, within just a few days, has seen numerous streamers and video game developers fall from grace, including the director of Assassin's Creed: Valhalla and other Ubisoft executives.

Then, out of the blue, mega-Twitch streamer Guy "Dr. Disrespect" Beahm was banned, apparently permanently, for reasons that have yet to be made clear.

Twitch released a statement so generic it's honestly not worth printing but I'll do it anyways because we must do our journalistic duty even if giant corporations can't be bothered with even the mildest scrap of transparency.

Here it is:

"As is our process, we take appropriate action when we have evidence that a streamer has acted in violation of our Community Guidelines or Terms of Service. These apply to all streamers regardless of status or prominence in the community."

One of Twitch's most popular streamers has been permanently banned from the platform, and the reasons why remain suspiciously unclear.

Just three months after Guy "Dr Disrespect" Beahm signed an exclusive streaming deal with the Amazon-owned live-streaming platform for a sum he described as "life-changing".

So what's the actual Reason i'm still yet to know but a lot of Conspiracies flying around.

This is a fairly old article, I read this already before.

We won't know until he or Twitch break the silence.

Nobody knows what's going on still. Crazy how hyped this is and nothing is coming out.

There's still no news. Hopefully soon we hear something, the doc's streams have entertained me a good amount since his comeback, hope to see him streaming again even if it is on spotify or wherever he ends up.

I can't believe that we just straight up don't know what happened to him. Not even a statement from twitch or anything...

It's probably beyond everyone who watches. It's definitely gotta be legal matters if they haven't announced anything.

Not only that, but we don't have actually nothing from any other possible source either. Just speculations.
