Thread: Amazing real life pixel version of a Minecraft painting

Stumbled upon this while browsing reddit and thought it was too cool. This girl actually took the time to paint out every single pixel that represents a color in this painting for her boyfriends birthday present, and I'm sure it took forever and was no easy feat.

She could honestly probably make a good amount of money selling them as well.

It's insane how much effort she put in to make everything look like the actual pixels:

Every girlfriend should have already made one of these for their boyfriends, it's a childhood necessity.
