Thread: Looking for a good gaming Xbox One/PC headset/Gaming Chair

Nate - July 13, 2020, 9:17 pm

Most im trying to spend is $150, i have some that work good. But i need an upgrade. I had these since the xbox first came out

Also looking for a gaming chair, idk how much they run so link me a decent one for around $150 as well.

Thank you all

I'm assuming you mean you are willing to spend $150 at most on each? For a headset I see it just like mechanical keyboards. It's all preference really based on which brands you like. What brands do you currently like? I'll link some suggestions. For a chair though, gaming chairs aren't really the most comfortable tbh and I don't think the low end ones even have any science involved in it's development. Just some cheap Chinese knockoffs.

Im willing to spend up to $400 on a chair, doesn't have to be gaming just a good one for my back honestly.

Aswell as for headphones im willing to spend up to $200.

SO IN TOTAL IM SPENDING $600

sorry if this confused anyone

Pretty much.. Gaming chair is an aesthetic. I spent $200, and it has lasted me a good amount of time. My next chair will be an ergonomic chair from Herman Miller. With this whole pandemic and remote work being the next big thing. Might as well invest in furniture rather than a gaming chair. I wouldn't say that ergo chairs are cheaper though.

I have a 3.5mm adapter thing on my xbox controller I'm not sure if thats what you mean i'm currently using these headphones, but these are about 5 + years old?

I got them when the Xbox one first came out.

But i'm willing to spend up to $200 if thats a better marketplace. I dont want to deal with Mic and a set of headphones. I would honestly want a whole headset if possible.

(Jul 15, 2020 05:11 PM)- Sam - Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The HermenMiller Aeron Chair is like £1,000. Good investment if you have the money. I'd get one myself but don't have that much to blow on a chair and I refuse to buy a second hand one.

Yes I currently have the this one, but the height adjuster thing is broke, I could try to google it.

It sits very very low to the ground, I need it to be higher. Its all the way down, i think the air pressure or whatevr holding it up is not working.

Sorry, I want like the Mic and headphones all in one. I'm not sure what its called techincally? Headset? My bad

And i no longer need a chair, I found how to fix my chair lol, its better doing this then paying $300 for a shittier chair.

I recently purchased a FANTASTIC headset from SteelSeries. I play on PS4 and PC and it is compatible with both via USB and it is hands down the most quality and reliable headset I have ever purchased.

Link down below.

If you have a smaller hand Logitech G Pro is the way to go. If you have a bigger hand Razer Deathadder.
