Edit: oh my god I just realised if you search anything about uk banks hsbc is the first one to come up. He actually put effort into this scam LOL

???????????Michael Kors - July 19, 2020, 2:27 pm

Obvious scam attempt.

User is a clown.

Pyro - July 19, 2020, 2:36 pm

I've stopped at half of your screenshots, too obvious he was about to scam

poor scam attempt anyway

Edit: user is a multi most likely

No comment from Itachi when he's been online the past few hours added to the ridiculously obvious attempt at a con... wonder if he'll even bother trying to defend himself?

Zexi - July 19, 2020, 7:31 pm

Good job man you dodged a bullet right there, he is so eager to buy 100 pounds when he as 10k in the bank lmao

BadLandChugs - July 19, 2020, 7:33 pm

he from ogu what can you expect

i dont even know wtf ogu is lmao

Itachi - July 19, 2020, 7:38 pm

Didn't try to scam attempt him. I didn't even force him to do the deal I told this weirdo to just cancel the deal and move on but yet still messages me. I was eager to buy it because it's 5% like who wouldn't? just because I have knowledge on forums now I'm being cause of being a multi lmfao

Why did you go full rage mode on me and even chat shit about my deceased girlfriend after I asked you to go first?

Like seriously what the fuck is wrong with you?

?aked - July 19, 2020, 7:43 pm

To be honest I wouldn't trust either one of you
When theres 2 members with low B-rating I think it's always best to use middle man.
I am putting myself in the position of buying your BTC, I wouldn't really trust you to send you $100, sorry.
Just like I would understand you not trusting me, at that point we would just agree on a middle man and do the deal.

Yeah fair enough but read the logs

Either way none of you ever thought about just saying, "ok let's use a middle man", because let's assume you did say that and he refused that would prove your point even more, by the way I am not hating on you, I wouldn't deal with anyone who spoke like that either, just my opinion on this situation.

I mean, over £100 I really couldn't be bothered with a middleman I'd just call it off.

I think our choices here having low B-rating, are either to deal only with very trusted members or use a middle man as people won't trust you, which is fair enough.

You want to build your rep so later on this type of things don't happen, just my advice. ?

yeah but like, its 100 quid, not worth my time to use an mm when i'll just sell it to the next guy that comes along.

The problem is, while you may genuinely feel that way, that is the kind of thing a typical scammer would say. Pressure tactics and such. At least use a middleman until you've established a bit more marketplace feedback...

I've been making large deals while going first even so I think I'm fine.

And that's your prerogative. But you do only have 3 marketplace ratings, like myself and many other members. I just don't think you can dismiss a middleman service and say it's not worth the time. If it's a trusted middleman or even better an official service like Escrow, then it can only give you more security and thus less chance of problems or disputes.

I understand what you're saying is but I'd rather build my rep by doing deals with people worth doing deals with. I'll use a middleman when its worth it. I'll go first when i can trust the other person.

Zee - July 19, 2020, 8:10 pm

Use a MM or don't do deals until at least one of you have established a reputation for lower deals. Seems to be an issue with the communication during the process.

Dont draw this out any longer than needed. You will end up violating one rule or another and get warned or worse. Community alert made, you had your say. You should relax now and leave this as it is.

They don't understand you're saying like 100 quid isn't even worth the mm hassle I've never used a MM on here and been on here since March look at my B rating don't let them deter you I honestly would only use a MM for a 5k or bigger deal until then imma take my chances

If someone is retarded enough to think that popularity points means someone has done enough deals on site, then they deserve to get scammed.
