Thread: Make Money Online In 2020

stuartlittle1 - July 20, 2020, 1:22 am

Hello guys,

Everything seems to be so saturated I could be wrong but I have been trying so many things to find out they are the same as any other working super hard for pennies.

Is there anything that is good to make money online ?

sonex - July 20, 2020, 2:28 am

You first need to change your mindset. What does "everything is saturated" even means? Does it mean a lot of people do it or does it mean you failed doing it?

If you see a lot of people do something that means there is a huge market for it, for example Shopify stores. There is probably close to 100k stores created, does that mean nobody is making money because it is "saturated"? No, which leads us to second question...

Did you fail? If you failed that means you dont have required knowledge to break through and put yourself up on top. There are many ways to obtain knowledge on the internet, I dont feel like you've tried hard enough.

You didnt specify which "methods" you're referring to but regardless, be it Shopify, CPA, Affiliate Marketing, you name it ... It all comes down to you as individual. Just remember one thing, there is no such thing as saturation, saturation proves you there is huge demand, it's up to you to make it happen.

I agree with Sonex I too used the "Too Saturated" line a lot when I decided to do something online. Imo, nothing will be too saturated and even if it does, that does not mean you cannot make money from it. You just have to learn how to stand out from the rest. "Too Saturated" is just an excuse. I've lost tons of good opportunities because of this stupid excuse.

Damn I just got inspired to try Shopify again...

stuartlittle1 - July 22, 2020, 1:27 am

I tried shopify, amazon dropshipping, becoming an instagram celebrity, stock daytrading, real estate investing you name it

Why dont you just stick to something instead of running around doing everything? You've gone from left to right, all the way around and still got nowhere. You cant just do "everything" it's basically impossible.

Makes sense, the biggest thing I learned was I dont want to deal with people. It takes up so much time so right now I am currently looking for a business that does not require you to talk to anyone. More like a paying service, still looking for things though. But you are right, I also experienced that whole 7 streams of income shit is not real. Your time runs so thin when you do many shit leaving you with no energy to enjoy yourself

Tell me about it. Dealing with people, especially online tends to be hard at moments unless you're dealing with people who have similar mindset to yours which is less than 0.01% lmao. Have you tried reselling social media likes/followers etc? I know a guy who runs local business selling instagram followers, created a website and advertised it locally. Accepting payments and everything else is automated. Just throwing you out some ideas based on what you'd prefer to do.

Man yeah dealing with people is a very hard thing for me, have not tried that. its a red sea though isnt it? Any other things ?

What have you done or currently doing that works?

It's hard for everyone, you're either born with it and you're successful or you're just wasting your time trying hard. There are literally 1000 things you can do online, ranging from easy to do, to the ones that require a literal business. I've given you the idea of reselling social media followers/likes locally, I've known bunch of people who started out that way, it requires little to no investment yet can bring you in decent amount of money to invest is something "bigger". Knowing your budget would help narrow couple of more things though.

I'm doing CPA for almost a decade now and run 3 Shopify stores for past 2 years, although Shopify tremendously failed me since pandemic started. I've gone from 5000$ a month to 500$ so right now I'm all into CPA.

Could you give me some info how people sell nstagram followers or that kind of services? Where they find them or how ?

I can help you out, or at least I think I can.

To be more useful when giving advice or support, I'd like to know a few things about you.

Please quote me here or PM me the following information.

What are your hobbies, regardless of it being weird as sucking toes up to 'old' things collecting ancient coins

What is the main goal you have in mind, when thinking about how to "make money online in 2020"

What is your experience in money making

What are 1-3 skills that you have, regardless of them being useful to make money online

How old are you (I hope 18+, but this does matter)

What is your budget? Like $0, $50-$100, $100-$500 or $500+

If you can answer those, I can give you some solid and adjusted advice.

I do charge usually, but I can give you 'some advice' for free.

Hello! Im also trying to earn from the internet, because I need it, because Im very sensitive on energy flow (which is unpredictable) and need to sit/yoga all day if I dont my body physically hurt lot. I was dealing with bad Karma stuff, so life opportunities were low.

So, I dedicated myself to online earning and to really earn some on my own. Im interested in start without investment and then lets see.

As you mentioned, reselling social promotion seems to me the easiest legal way. I found here a nice offer very cheap. Im going to create instagram acc to sell there and maybe offer on fb.

Let's see

Here's what happened in reality...

Shopify: You set up a half-arsed store with a product you know nothing about and probably paid $5 in Facebook Ads thinking you'll get $30 in sales off 50 clicks without even knowing what A/B testing even means.

Amazon Dropshipping: Most likely you bought a stock of useless product that has provides no solution to people's problems, shipped to Amazon, sold nothing and Amazon shipped these items back to you.

Becoming an Instagram celebrity: Probably gave up at 5k fake followers mark.

Stock Daytrading: Bought 10 penny stocks, lost considerable portion of your positions the next hour, sold everything at loss the hour after.

Real Estate Investing: Nope, real estate "investing" is not calling people asking to list their properties on Airbnb mate. Investing in real estate can mean a lot of things but mostly you buy a property, you renovate it and sell it at a profit. If you buy a £100,000 property in a shite area, invest £20,000 to renovate and sell it back at £80,000, you've made a loss of £40,000.

As @sonex said, choose one and stick with it, learn as much as you can about it and don't spend money until you make money (either via the business you set-up or from a 9-5 job).

Save up some money to start with.
I charge for my financial advice and the majority of the white-hat methods require or recommend to have some budget at least.

I am agree with you ,yes its saturated but that dont means you cannot make money .Try to adventure in new things that are more harder and more complicated as there its not so much competition .For example me i made good money with youtube and affiliate marketing but nowadays its way to competitive
