

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Got myself an Iphone and I'm struggling

Wolf - July 21, 2020, 11:46 am

I got myself an Iphone SE2020 as I was looking for a smaller device with more or less up to date specs. This is my first time using an iphone and I got it 15ish days ago.

At first I noticed I had to input my password like 20 times in order to setup iCloud and region properly.

After which I went to the app store, which seems like a huge mess as I can't see categories for apps I need, but I get them when I open an app individually.

Figured I'd start with good old YouTube, which to my surprise, wasn't available on the appstore. After going back and forth, I changed the region in order to download the application . _.

So far, I'm not a fan.

What application would you recommend me to handle offline use of audio files? As in, audio player. I don't want to use any streaming service nor be necessarily connected to the internet when I'm listening to the music.

Help ?

Limitado - July 21, 2020, 11:47 am

Why is youtube not on the appstore?

Wolf - July 21, 2020, 11:50 am

(Jul 21, 2020 11:47 AM)Delight Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Why is youtube not on the appstore?

Apparently it is not available in the Serbian region on the appstore. The service is also free worldwide and was always available on google appstore. Yet you get to change the region without any verification, so unsure what's the point of that.

Rozzy - July 21, 2020, 11:52 am

Downloading music to your computer and then uploading to your phone via iTunes (tutorials everywhere on google and youtube) will let you save any of the songs you want right to your phone's music library, useful for listening to music offline but you'll have to update your song list manually.

Limitado - July 21, 2020, 11:52 am

(Jul 21, 2020 11:50 AM)Wolf Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Apparently it is not available in the Serbian region on the appstore. The service is also free worldwide and was always available on google appstore. Yet you get to change the region without any verification, so unsure what's the point of that.

Ya that sounds dumb. Were you asking like what app to use to listen to music?

?aked - July 21, 2020, 12:02 pm

(Jul 21, 2020 11:52 AM)Rozzy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Downloading music to your computer and then uploading to your phone via iTunes (tutorials everywhere on google and youtube) will let you save any of the songs you want right to your phone's music library, useful for listening to music offline but you'll have to update your song list manually. I do this too, it's pretty easy to do once you have iTunes set up on your computer, no ads obviously aha

Rozzy - July 21, 2020, 12:08 pm

(Jul 21, 2020 12:02 PM)akewrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I do this too, it's pretty easy to do once you have iTunes set up on your computer, no ads obviously aha
Exactly haha, very useful for offline listening, too bad there weren't easier ways though.

Wolf - July 21, 2020, 12:53 pm

(Jul 21, 2020 11:52 AM)Delight Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Ya that sounds dumb. Were you asking like what app to use to listen to music?

Yes, that's what I'm asking for.

Any application you'd recommend that's only used for music listening in offline mode.

I'm literally struggling to find basic apps.

Limitado - July 21, 2020, 1:20 pm

(Jul 21, 2020 12:53 PM)Wolf Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yes, that's what I'm asking for.

Any application you'd recommend that's only used for music listening in offline mode.

I'm literally struggling to find basic apps.

Well I personally use youtube music because you can also watch youtube videos without any ads.

webdev77 - July 21, 2020, 1:23 pm

Pretty sure VLC is still working on iOS.

Popstar - July 21, 2020, 1:24 pm

iPhones suck dick i wouldn't even know what to recommend for you

Juice - July 21, 2020, 1:26 pm

(Jul 21, 2020 11:46 AM)Wolf Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I got myself an Iphone SE2020 as I was looking for a smaller device with more or less up to date specs. This is my first time using an iphone and I got it 15ish days ago.

At first I noticed I had to input my password like 20 times in order to setup iCloud and region properly.

After which I went to the app store, which seems like a huge mess as I can't see categories for apps I need, but I get them when I open an app individually.

Figured I'd start with good old YouTube, which to my surprise, wasn't available on the appstore. After going back and forth, I changed the region in order to download the application ._.

So far, I'm not a fan.

What application would you recommend me to handle offline use of audio files? As in, audio player. I don't want to use any streaming service nor be necessarily connected to the internet when I'm listening to the music.

Help ?

Apple Music download your music from there. YouTube download your music from there, YouTube is on the App Store if you can't find it let me know I have been using IOS for years I would be more than happy to help with any questions.

Wolf - July 21, 2020, 1:28 pm

(Jul 21, 2020 01:26 PM)Juice Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Apple Music download your music from there. YouTube download your music from there, YouTube is on the App Store if you can't find it let me know I have been using IOS for years I would be more than happy to help with any questions.

I have all music I want downloaded.

Should I simply go for VLC like Webdev recommended to play audio files or there is any other audio player you'd recommend?

As for the YouTube, I changed the region and it became available on the appstore.

Juice - July 21, 2020, 1:31 pm

(Jul 21, 2020 01:28 PM)Wolf Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have all music I want downloaded.

Should I simply go for VLC like Webdev recommended to play audio files or there is any other audio player you'd recommend?

As for the YouTube, I changed the region and it became available on the appstore.

Yeah I would go with webdev and dope glad u figured it out the thing with Apple is there's a bunch of random bs like that for stupid reasons, you'll soon learn that android destroys IOS in the App Store world.

funtela - July 21, 2020, 3:04 pm

(Jul 21, 2020 01:24 PM)Popstar Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) iPhones suck dick i wouldn't even know what to recommend for you

They're really not that bad lol

Lost99 - July 21, 2020, 3:06 pm

On my old iPhone SE I have Converter App.

With this App you can download Music from different sources, YouTube for example and change to mp3 or aac and listen offline.

It works with Bluetooth in my car too.

Mix - July 21, 2020, 3:13 pm

(Jul 21, 2020 03:04 PM)funtela Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) They're really not that bad lol

They are not the greatest for some uses but yeah they are not that bad honestly they work great!

BiggL - July 21, 2020, 3:25 pm

You going to need to download a vpn and get yourself to a different country like the USA and sort the phone then change back my bro

Artisan - July 21, 2020, 3:29 pm

I use VLC for playing everything on all my devices. Only had minor issues over the years but nothing that will make me move on to other apps. You should try it out.

TOM - July 22, 2020, 12:09 am

Iphones sucks but way better than android when it comes to privacy

Hackt00lz - July 22, 2020, 5:08 am

(Jul 21, 2020 11:46 AM)Wolf Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I got myself an Iphone SE2020 as I was looking for a smaller device with more or less up to date specs. This is my first time using an iphone and I got it 15ish days ago.

At first I noticed I had to input my password like 20 times in order to setup iCloud and region properly.

After which I went to the app store, which seems like a huge mess as I can't see categories for apps I need, but I get them when I open an app individually.

Figured I'd start with good old YouTube, which to my surprise, wasn't available on the appstore. After going back and forth, I changed the region in order to download the application ._.

So far, I'm not a fan.

What application would you recommend me to handle offline use of audio files? As in, audio player. I don't want to use any streaming service nor be necessarily connected to the internet when I'm listening to the music.

Help ?

Welcome to the world of iPhones. I personally don't like iPhone....i have 2 iPhones that i don't use, i use them only for development purposes...i prefer to use Android as it gives me what i want...

jecoylecroy - July 28, 2020, 6:59 pm

I'm not a fan of iphone too because my colleagues struggle a lot for it for the first time.