

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: Any Psychology majors/graduates?

rsx - July 23, 2020, 8:37 pm

I would love to conversate with other Psychology majors/graduates/enthusiasts. My dream is to obtain my PhD and open my own firm, or work in a high level Psychologist job in the government or something.

I'm mainly looking for other Psych majors that are currently in undergrad/grad school. Share some ideas, ask questions and such. Feel free to DM me if you're interested in Psychology.

aerox00 - August 2, 2020, 6:29 am

I have many friends studying in 4th or 5th semester in germany right now if you highly interested i can maybe link up

Nima304 - August 2, 2020, 10:39 pm

I know a few psychology majors, one's a Ph.D in Behavioral Psychology (my old CO in the military) who's an assistant professor at a local community college, one's an M.A. who now works in IT (he realized psychology doesn't pay well at all and he can make far more money in the computer industry), and one is a B.A. who spent a couple years after graduating unemployed before he finally found work at a counselor in school.

I wouldn't recommend anyone study it unless it's truly their passion. The industry just doesn't pay that well.