Thread: What smart devices do you own?

A + - July 24, 2020, 9:01 pm

Currently I'm only rocking a smart phone right now, but I have my eye out for something new. I ran across a smart grill that had some cool features. What do you own or what would you like to own?

I currently own a smartphone, smartwatch, and a google home mini (the old version of the Nest Mini). I've seen some insane things that have tried to become "smart" and half of them I just facepalm at wondering what the designer/developer was thinking in making it.....I have come to the conclusion hard core drugs must be involved with at least 75% of the "smart" products.

With all of that being said, I really would like to own one of those "smart" thermostats that I believe Nest sells? I heard they were pretty good.

Currently have a smartphone and matching galaxy watch, looking into smart home accessories here and there but haven't acted on anything

Verdande - July 25, 2020, 1:37 am

I have not had anything but my laptop for a years, I last owned a phone about 4 years ago.

Google Home, plan to convert to more smart house

BiggL - July 25, 2020, 5:45 am

Smart phone, Smart TV, Smartwatch

Wolfblack - July 25, 2020, 5:53 am got a new amazon firestick, very little device but the function it does is really awesome! WIFI reciever, inbuilt apps and OS and cool interface everything made me can't stop thinking about it!

(Jul 25, 2020 04:18 AM)James Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You know, I actually bought smart shoes recently lol. Pretty cool. They track a bunch of metrics about my steps when I go for a run or walk. Really nice. Didn't know those existed lol. Are they expensive?

(Jul 25, 2020 06:15 AM)James Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah they're pretty cool. The ones I have cost me £105 and are the Under Armour HOVR Sonic 3 W8LS Running Shoes. Really comfy as well. Just googled, looks pretty nice for the price, not too expensive. What else do they do other than counting steps?

I'm currently using a Samsung Galaxy S8 and it very sucks. I'll be back with an iPhone for soon, this was not a good buy (for the s8)

(Jul 25, 2020 06:28 AM)James Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Tracks steps, cadence, stride length, distance, some other metric I think. It can also track a run automatically and then synced to your phone later so you don't even have to take your phone with you on a run. That's pretty cool and worth the money it sounds. I personally use my phone because I also use it for music.

(Jul 25, 2020 06:33 AM)James Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Well yeah, I use my phone for music as well but if you didn't want to take your phone, you don't have to. Could be useful, you never know. I think they're worth the money. My shoes alone are costing that much, but if you get all those features along then it's more than worth it for sure. ?

(Jul 25, 2020 06:35 AM)James Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) For running shoes, I actually think it's a pretty good price for what they do. Running shoes are running shoes, but none that I've seen are "smart" and does what yours do. Never even heard of it before now lol.

At the moment, I have most of my house ran off of "Smart Home" tech. but other than that, I just have my phone and a watch.

I have to say, if anyone's looking to convert to a "Smart House" It's amazing. I couldn't imagine actually going and setting my AC temperature or going turn the light switch off an on. I know that's lazy and a shame to say, but it's very nice.

Yeah if a laptop is included I own a $1500 gaming laptop as well a323109 - July 25, 2020, 8:18 am

A cellphone and 2 laptops, one running Ubuntu and the older one is running Debian stable. That is all

Limitado - July 25, 2020, 8:58 am

Currently have a busted Iphone 7. Hoping to upgrade soon. Might even be an android

BenCardson - July 25, 2020, 9:07 am

I don't own to many smart appliances because the privacy and security risks outweigh the convenience. Does anyone have any thoughts or experience with this?

? Soufian ? - July 25, 2020, 9:36 am

Basically just my tv lol no automated house unfortunately

Blockonome - July 25, 2020, 9:37 am

I literally only have a Google Mini, need to use it more though, because right now, it is mostly just for music.
