I've worn glasses all my life and I've had astigmatism. I always thought other people see lights like this. Do you have astigmatism?

I wonder where you got the idea for this thread from?

But no I do not.

Yeah I wonder the same, but you don't literally see lights like that sometimes? It's so weird, I've had it all my life.

No they just seem normal too me.

Dopamine - July 28, 2020, 1:58 pm

Yes I have astigmatism

That's fucking sad but we don't have the choice to live with xD

I don't wear glasses but I have contact lenses

My life has been a lie all this time.

I assume you only get this effect if you have wipers running and it's raining.

Do you have contact lenses that fix astigmatism? I do and they cost a little more than normal ones.

Yeah its fix this :) But the only things is I don't have " normal " contact lenses. They are created on size and they cost me 600$ CAD per years

Gary Clark Jr. - July 28, 2020, 2:01 pm

I have astigmatism and have had glasses basically my whole life.

Avatar checks out ?

Did you both know that others without it don't see lights like this?

Yep, same. I didn't know until I saw a twitter thread about this some time ago.

YoungPriest - July 28, 2020, 2:15 pm

Because of this thread I just realised it wasn't normal. Is it common or pretty rare?

I don't know but my guess would be that astigmatism is pretty common if you wear glasses, to be honest I don't really know.

Longdog - July 28, 2020, 2:19 pm

Honestly my shit looks like that depending on how much smoke is in my vehicle

Free Kurdistan - July 28, 2020, 2:24 pm

Used to see em like that and got stronger lenses. I could tell it was bad.

?aked - July 28, 2020, 2:25 pm

Wait I thought everyone seen lights like that at night?

But yeah I do, so how do people see lights at night? Im confused ahah

Yep, you're on the same boat. Ask your friends, they don't see it like this unless they have it.

I am going to get my glasses soon, I went years and years seeing really bad but without glasses, but now I see bad but it's normal, I see everything "fine" because I don't know any different.

Yes, glasses should fix astigmatism, at least for me. You should ask your eye clinic or wherever you're getting your glasses from. They always measure if I have astigmatism but never really looked into it.

V?rt - July 28, 2020, 2:40 pm

Yeah I do. I actually just got my first new pair of glasses in around 5 years, i needed a huge adjustment.

Semmenial - July 28, 2020, 2:42 pm

I actually do have an astigmatism in one eye. Although, I only see lights like that through a windshield or when I don't have my contacts in.

The Avengers - July 28, 2020, 3:12 pm

I'm the someway, I've had it since I was very young but Ironically my vision was 20/20 up until I was about 13.

jecoylecroy - July 28, 2020, 5:06 pm

I have it before and I don't wear the glasses prescribe but limit my self it using gadgets and I get's better and better now.

Blockonome - July 28, 2020, 6:37 pm

LOL! I have been thinking my vision was horrible, like do not get me wrong, I do wear contact lenses, but I see light like the picture to the left.

Can you see far, what kind of specs do you have on your glasses?

I limit myself in using mobile phone, playing mobile games which I do most all the time which I do before. I limit myself in watching television. And in work I don't watch the pc's monitor all the time, instead I look around walk outside if not busy. Then most of all, I sleep 8 hrs every night. I keep my eyes away from mobile phone when on bed. No my eyes are getting better. I have my eyeglasses but I use it only when I have loaded work.

I literally just figured this out ahahah, quite funny to be honest!

Injun Joe - July 29, 2020, 2:08 am

As the picture says I always thought this was normal, maybe I have astigmatism.
Do I need to consult a doctor?

Marketplace - July 29, 2020, 2:10 am

I autism, asthma and apparently astigmatism.

No I can't see far at all. I don't know my prescription if that's what you're asking. But I got anti glare and scratch, and blue light lenses on them. They're Burberry frames as well so they cost me a little over $600

Artisan - July 29, 2020, 3:47 am

I have very slight astigmatism, to the extent that it doesnt become an inconvenience without glasses. I have glasses for them but dont enjoy wearing them coz the extra weight on my ears makes my head hurt for some reason.

Hackeo.co - July 29, 2020, 4:00 am

No, but I know a lot of people that are living with astigmatism. Some of them fixed it with laser surgery and some are just wearing lenses or glasses to have a normal vision.

I'm currently saving up for laser surgery. I've been saving and waiting til my vision stops getting worse. It has slowed down drastically in the recent years.

phunted - July 29, 2020, 4:41 pm

Personally actually never heard of this until you brought it up. I done some research and fortunately I can see lights without the blurred vision.

Does that affect your driving at all during night?

Squanchy - July 29, 2020, 4:42 pm

I have astigmatism and I don't see lights like that lmao. When I wear my glasses it kinda does that a bit. And I have a decently high prescription....

?roye - July 29, 2020, 6:34 pm

If I think about it, it happens to me. But if I don't, I'm fine. Does it work that way? XD

Not sure if it does, I think you're just twisting your eyes or something.

bluud - July 30, 2020, 2:30 am

I know it's different for car windshields but when I'm laying in bed watching netflix on my monitor I get this shit bad, I've found personal methods to reduce it though somehow lmao

Lynx - July 30, 2020, 7:47 am

Oh damn. Didn't know that was actually a thing.
