We reported alerting numbers in the beginning, but literally no one is in intensive care at the moment. Two people die a day on a 10 000 000+ population. Numbers will likely rise again as winter approaches and we go inside though. How's your country doing?

Blockonome - July 29, 2020, 11:44 am

Denmark is doing very well, I think Sweden and Denmark has a battle of how well it is going between them :D

Ahaha that is amazing man, I do miss Sweden a lot, been some time, since I have been there :)

Maxie - July 29, 2020, 12:15 pm

Yeah, I think we handled corona in a perfect way for the way the population of Sweden is structured, very few big cities and even in those cities the population isn't very dense.
It feels nice to see that we seem to have chosen the correct strategy.

TBF, I gotta Sweden literally handled this best. But both the Danish and Swedish are sensible people in general.

Well only in their own countries lol

Bra Skit

USA is doing absolutely fugging s worst in the world. Trump and the government can't this their heads straight.

Pawnhub - July 29, 2020, 12:53 pm

Here in the USA I see nobody with it. None. Not one person with covid or showing symptoms while nobody is staying at home. It's been busy as usual.

The statistics they are reporting have to be wrong because in my county 1/3 people are infected and the county next to me has 13,000 people yet has 15 thousand infections?

I can't be bothered with this covid shit anymore.

Silent hill - July 29, 2020, 12:53 pm

well in my country we have lockdown and we still have many deaths, we are only 6 millions population.

we get at least 30 death a day

Limitado - July 29, 2020, 1:39 pm

About 400-500 new cases in Canada daily here

Nate - July 29, 2020, 10:28 pm

lucky you, its still going rampid in my country
