Here's an example for you lifted from my own life I tend to put egg yolk, butter, and peanut butter/peanut oil into my coffee and am more or less blatantly looking for new/interesting combinations for this purpose as coffee is my nootropic of choice.

I havent tried adding anything you listed but Ive tried adding peanuts to tea and coffee. It gives the peanuts a complimenting taste.

That seems weird to add anything you listed in coffee. You might look for different kind of coffee if you want to taste different things instead of trying to add anything in it

My stomach can't take that kind of odd combination, do you add vanilla?

Throw coffee fight in the fcking bin, it's horrible.

I'm pretty basic, I just like Caremark on top of my coffee. Although I have had a coffee that has a whipped egg white in it and it was quite fantastic. Other than that, I haven't really had unique coffee flavor experiences

Thats weird xD

Try ice coffee though

Sometimes I add milk for my coffee.

jaded7 - August 6, 2020, 11:20 pm

Sometimes I top my brew with a hint of cinnamon or ground nutmeg.

Cocaine in coffee is a good mix.

Lyralei - August 7, 2020, 1:13 am

I sometimes purchase vanilla creamer with my coffee if I feel like drinking something sweet.

Azythum - August 7, 2020, 1:30 am

I like coffee without anything added.

Injun Joe - August 7, 2020, 2:15 am

I drink only plain coffee, nothing added, but I'd like to try different flavors.
