Who remembers when that group that was taking down xbox live servers at the time (I think). And kim dot com got involved. I thought he was gonna do something special. And then he was like "okay ill offer you hackers $500 mega.nz vouchers if you stop" Imfaoooo. WTF Bro why tf would they take that deal?

Man I miss ChF, Criminal & Cade :(they were the OG's. I can't believe he thought that offer would get them to stop. Mega accounts are cracked daily, and you can get premium for pennies lol. Ever since his arrest he's just become a meme.

Zeekill, Crow and fbiarelosers mainly. Dunno who ChF, Criminal & Cade are.

At the end of the day, they are all just skids.

Those who actively 'hack/cheat' in video games will eventually end up becoming just like them if they don't face a punishment strong enough at the right age.

The process usually goes like this:

Guy makes cheats for game to make money.

People buy cheats.

People get banned for cheats.

People look for 'better' cheats.

People get involved with 'private' cheats.

People try become resellers of cheats and/or become 'protective' over their cheats.

People become angsty against people calling out their cheats and start to abuse it to annoy people/get attention.

At that point those 'people' are now ddosing, doxing and straight up just trying to make money and harass people online for internet points.

I've seen it happen far too many times to count.

^ Pretty much. Their booter was promising somehow 600+ Gbps, and this was back in 2016, no ? People used to fall for this scheme anyway.

Yes, Vinnie used to sell them.

MightyOne - August 12, 2020, 6:26 am

Lmao this is one of the funnier articles iv'e read in the past.

I love kim dot com, he's a great guy ! nice to see how he acted lmao, he saved xbox live that time

Late 2014. There was definitely a different group of people back then.

I think there was some tension between a few people and Omni asked them to leave.

It was pretty serious tension. I've seen group owners flat out banned, but never anyone asked to leave. Idk all of the details, but it was a good show from the sidelines.
