I never understood gshock watches, they're like $800 but look and perform the exact same as those $6 spiderman watches my dad used to get me when i was in kindergarden. Are there any special features or anything? They just seem absurd to me because you can get a brand new apple watch for like $450 but a super basic watch with no internet or apps or anything goes for like $900

Hmm depends on what you wanna spend, if you wanna keep it lower than macbook range but keep it sleek, the new Dell XPS 13 would be worthy comparable to the macbook air (13 inches). For 15in, the HP Spectre x360 or the Dell XPS 15 would be good too.

I just got a 14 inch laptop and LOVE the size of it. Very portable little guy

- Tough Solar
- ISO 200m diver-level water resistance
- Triple Sensor (pressure, magnetic, temperature)
- Underwater depth measurement up to 80 meters (in 10 cm units)
- Bearing measurement regardless of wrist position (auto level correction)
- Dive start time, dive time, minimum water temperature, maximum depth
- Auto dive data recording (20 diving log records)
- Ascent rate alarm alerts you when the rate of ascent is 10 meters per minute or faster.
- Tide Graph/Moon Data
- Super Illuminator high brightness Full Auto LED illumination

The frogman series of G-shock is also individually rigorously tested (Instead of batch tested like most g-shock models) before it leaves the factory in Japan. Only the high-end models are made in Japan. There are also components of the watch that are hand done rather than done by a machine, Japanese labor is expensive.

Oh so it's not a watch for prissy eboys like me and it's for actual productive people who are capable of being physically active?

Does seem like a good watch if you are looking for complete waterproof & are a diver.

If you are a diver please give me more information because I am extremely drunk and have always wanted to go diving so now I'm intrigued.
