Thread: got food send to my door

SIM-4660060 - August 18, 2020, 2:20 pm

lmao, someone who knew my address because a friend said it randomly on call sent £30 of food to my door ahaha i think the real thing i'm sad about is that it was unpaid, didn't get to eat it, had to tell the driver to go away ?

Oh that's awful, I started reading and thought someone bought you food I was gonna say that's fucking awesome, but damn that's shitty.

Goods - August 18, 2020, 2:29 pm

That is very shitty indeed. What kind of food was it?

Nima304 - August 18, 2020, 2:35 pm

That fucking sucks, I thought it was a story about how you got free food.

(Aug 18, 2020 02:31 PM)Doubt Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) hope the driver just ate it himself or donated it to someone in need, what do restaurants etc actually do with food which is sent back if they don't straight up trash it?

Generally one of the staff members can take it home, unless the place is a shithole, in which case management will force them to throw it away.

Nima304 - August 18, 2020, 2:41 pm

(Aug 18, 2020 02:36 PM)Doubt Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) nice to hear that, people who i know who've worked at restaurants have only ever seen it wasted :/

It's a really shitty practice, especially given how little restaurant employees are paid. It should be pretty easy to set up a system where people get the food they'd actually want, and it's spread out across all the staff.
