Thread: Hacking with Kali #1 - Passive Information Gathering - I made a video bandors - August 24, 2020, 6:46 am

I made a tutorial about the first step in most hacking jobs, passive information gathering. Please quick love this thread if you learned something new. I will make a new tutorial after a few days. ?

Looks good. You stuttered a bit but you always went straight to the point. Your voice being in an everyday-talk mood was also a plus.

For the material I think it's really good that you didn't go through too much specifics like Shodan, Censys, Maltego or whathaveyou. You mostly went for the general umbrella points, which made the video easier to digest.

I'll share this with my infosec friends so they can give you upvotes. ?

Well done, Bandors. I watched the full video, and it would be helpful for beginners.
Keep the good work up.

Bandors i think it was a very well explained tutorial,clear and simple. As you showed there are may resources available to gather data/info ina passive mode.

Thank you for the hard work

Great video! So much easier to learn when you have a decent mic compared to half the tutorials out there. Thanks for sharing!

I'm probably going to remake this video, but I still think it's a really solid intro to enumeration. I forgot I even made this video haha.
