Thread: [\[COVID-19\] Aftermath.](#)

bluud - August 25, 2020, 3:45 am

I saw a similar thread like this but I want to make it a more direct question.

Assuming you are wearing masks and being smart during this time with a global pandemic, will you continue wearing them after covid is declared 'over'?

Personally, I don't see everything going back to like it was prior, just seeing how unprepared every country was for something as small as this is insane. If this was a virus as bad as some we have seen this could have done some serious damage.

I will be wearing a mask until I feel everything is clear and we are prepared for the next.

MarvinMalware - August 25, 2020, 8:09 am

I think personally I would wear a mask until I feel comfortable to do otherwise, which probably won't be right after they declare it "over". It's gonna be hard for people to go back to old normal after all of this.

Regulus - August 25, 2020, 8:14 am

I would definitively not go back to normal after all this shit.

I am in the highest risk zone and I've spent most of my time inside this summer.

I am not risking anything, I wanna live.

I was tested positive and after 5 hours on the second test negative, I don't believe in Covid-19 tbh, nobody talks about that in my country anymore.

Maybe mask if I'm in small spaces, I'm definitely always going to be Keeping hand sanitizer in my car for the rest of my life probably have a real habit of using before and after stoping at a gas station or any where.

Bacardi Cola Lime - August 25, 2020, 9:04 am

I will continue wearing a mask in the same places I wear now. The danger is and will be high.

Same thing here. Taking any sort of risk is completely unnecessary and pretty cheap price to protect yourself

Ares - August 25, 2020, 10:09 am

Will be wearing a mask for the foreseeable future, for sure.

Prepper - August 25, 2020, 11:51 am

I will probably continue using a mask for a while to be certain it is gone and also that will give time for this upcoming vaccine to be proven safe in the masses.

jecoyecoy - August 25, 2020, 9:06 pm

I will be still wearing face mask if still there are threats of corona virus. It is better to be safe. :)

What test did they used for the 1st and the 2nd testing?

You are seems to be pretty lucky and so as your country.

Bro first one was called "fast test", but I don't believe in Covid-19 tbh, google how many people die every day from other things...And nobody talks about that.

Oh yeah the rapid test is not accurate it was testing and looking for your anti bodies and not the covid things.

Swab testing is much more reliable than that rapid testing...glad you are clear of swab testing bro.

trashy - August 26, 2020, 6:14 am

I would not wear a mask ever. Only in case of other pandemic.

SIM-4641956 - August 26, 2020, 6:39 am

I would not wear masks once everything is "finished" also because from what I know wearing masks causes damage to health and lungs

Yeah sometimes it's really hard to breathe and here in our place the authority were asking the people to wear face mask and face shield as well.

Injun Joe - August 26, 2020, 7:35 am

I always wear mask while driving a motorcycle because I'm not comfortable with full face helmet, and I will keep on wearing it.

I used to be terrified of it, but so far my mom, sister, and 80 year old grandpa have all got it.

my room mate almost died 3 months ago of a severe lung infection (not covid related) and was on a respirator and everything and in a medically induced coma for a month. just went to the biggest motorcycle rally in the US (sturgis) where no one wore masks, no social distancing, and TONS of fucking people.

he came home from the event after being there for 2 weeks and it being all over the news that the event wasn't enforcing masks, and he's perfectly fine. no issues at all.

But to some other countries they are not already using them and it seems the covid threat is not big deal to them.

Unfortunately for us it will remain a real big deal until the vaccines comes and everyone can have it maybe that time the pandemic thing will subside and peace of mind will be back.

Tensei - August 26, 2020, 2:17 pm

I've heard we might be wearing masks and social distancing for another 1-5 years. So that's fun. Regardless, until COVID is in a controllable way, I'm most likely going to be wearing a mask even after all of this dies down. I don't want to get my family sick in the off chance I contract it after its been "purged".
