

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: how do you get approved by adsense?

chainslasher - September 3, 2020, 8:31 pm

I own many websites but most require you to login. I applied for google adsense and was rejected. They told me they only allow websites that don't require someone to sign up. They gave examples like blogs etc.

Yet, I seen places like ebay in the start they used it. Craigslist used it. They have a section where you are required to log in and post messages and if you don't you can't see that part of the website.

What is required of google adsense in order to get approved and what other places where you can make money based on traffice to your website?

there was a girl back in 2007 that made a website that gives layout code for myspace.com profiles. She used adsense and make millions of dollars. She easily got approved. I just don't get why I can get easily approved and wounder if there are alternatives that are legal and legit.

Swordsman - September 3, 2020, 9:05 pm

(Sep 3, 2020 08:31 PM)chainslasher Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) they only allow websites that don't require someone to sign up. They gave examples like blogs etc.

They have advise you a good point.

When you have webs stores that user need to sign up to explore the products, you should create another webs on another places that informed about every of your products and function. It's called Blogs, you need to create many post on this webs, better include with picture.

When it ready, just apply the adsense with your blogs webs, and put banner or your webstore on top of your Blo for advertising your shops.

cyote791 - September 18, 2020, 4:27 am

Me, I personally bought an account in different forums. I think the price was $60 for an Adsense account and I got it in 7 days if I am not mistaken.

blkchain - September 18, 2020, 4:45 am they want sites with good content and provide value. You usually don't place a lot of ads on sites that people are paying to join and they don't want scammy crappy sites. So create a blog with good, unique, original content and you shouldn't have an issue.