Life does mean a lot but I think its a love, sacrifice and patience. what do you think?

Life has no inherent meaning, we assign meaning to life.

Life for me is doing something good for other people. If you don't do good things you are like a walking dead.

Meaning of life... well, for me as long as your breathing you need to do something to make your self better everyday. If you can't help your self you can't help others. Don't waste your life to commit sins like using drugs and do any kind of violence towards to others. leave the life to the fullest and make your self useful.

There is no meaning, you gotta make your own.

There is no meaning to life, it's pointless.

so it's mean we will make it meaning??? Then tell me why are we sacrificing for loves like family and friends?

Life is pointless, it's just a test/pointless.

We are living in a loop, where we do same stuff 24/7.

Life is pointless, people say it's about reaching your goal. Chasing goals is just an insult... Everything is fake. Once you reach your goals then what's next?

Life is complicated...

We are just living a miserable life.

Close enough, it could be almost anything with what there is in the world.
