Is this just a coding tool? Your pretty new so I am not sure if anyone would trust your files man?

Freakon - September 18, 2020, 6:05 pm

I don't trust this dude at all, but can someone vouch after, if it works.

Verdande - September 18, 2020, 6:16 pm

I'll take a look at it, will update with a report when I get to it.

No, I'm using my newly coded tool to generate excel files with auto download-execute macros.

Don't trust, then don't use. I have no use for backdooring and anyone that tries it and analyzes it will know theres nothing fishy going on besides what's intended.

Okay, just send me a PM with direct link and a spreadsheet if you don't want a blank one Picture for those wondering:

Well thanks for the share. Also it's normal for people to not trust a new user here. I mean this is HF.

this ^

And also, OP why are you asking ME to send YOU a direct link?

I thought YOU were sending the program to ME.

This seems pretty fishy. Are these exploits even allowed here?

You bring up a good point, someone has been fishing!

I smell it too.

Im not sending the program. I'm sending builds made with the program that download and run your link.

I only made it because there's a lot already on the market on this site. I plan to eventually sell it.

I guess same shit different day, I see a lot of things going on that is against the rules, but it kinda depends on the mood of the people who deal with it, so I always leave it.

Ok man, well I am sure someone will vouch for you. If I had my xp junk box setup and running I would test it out np.

Verdande - September 18, 2020, 7:05 pm

Ok, if you are sending builds, you should request someone who can make a report about it and clear up any confusion regarding backdoors. This can very easily be interpreted that you are trying to spread your malware through other people's link, and they are obviously meant to infect people so this is blackhat activity.

So @Rsynced, I guess you were right.

I'm not responsible for what the users use it for. I provide an as-is service that is not promoted for blackhat use. That being said I'll be in no way policing activity of builds and everything is anonymous and totally up to the user. There are actually also a few legitimate applications for this. Also I'd be more than happy to send it to anyone you have in mind. The only problem I'm facing now is nobody wants it because I won't spend money on l33t lol. I have been coding for 10+ years and the only thing I am trying to do is make money on my applications and build trust on this site

You do realize, from what you have already said, you are breaking the rules?

This is an exploit (you have admitted that), and you do a build, and send people a direct link for it.

Which is against the TOS of Hackforums.

If it's against the rules then report it and move on. I'm not here to argue with wannabe staff. You do realize there are literally RATs being sold on this site, and crypters specifically intended to encrypt malware which is illegal and many people have been arrested BECAUSE of this forum, right?

There's a difference between selling someone a gun VS loading it for them aiming and just telling them to pull the trigger.

I am as much of a wannabe staff as you are at trying to pull shitty schemes like this.

See even if you had a flawless product to sell, your attitude would come in the way if any success you would have,

and it's not like this is fine art either, I think someone needs their nap.

Microwaves were not around when Quasimodo was around, neither was his mother.
