Like why would a parent name their kid Gay if their last name is already Bowser Lmfao. Poor kid probably gets bullied daily.

Suppose they find it funny and do it for the clout....until the kid gets older and shoots up a school lol

They were probably drunk and they were like, hmmm maybe if we name our kid gay it will be funny and they thought it was a good choice until the kid went to school and most probably got bullied. Ill never understand it. I suppose some parents might find the name normal though. If i have a kid i want to call it Garry and everyone thinks thats a dumb name, Lmfao

They think they're being unique and instead they're setting their kid up for some weird looks.

Because they want attention from other ctazy mothers in their mothers group on Facebook and don't give a second thought to the fact that their child will have to live with the name

Probably a parent that doesn't take life serious enough to name the child something proper.

My take is that such parents usually don't know they've given terrible names to their children.

Perhaps I'm sure sometimes that maybe possible. But honestly sit down one moment and just say the name to yourself.

Are you saying people shouldn't give children names until they are mature enough to choose their own?

Sure. I will try out your challenge and see how it goes.

Not everyone in this world has a brain (no offense), it's not something that you can change and so you need to help those people with these problems in their life. Accept it and move on. Many parents can not take care of their children or their own life, some will get there when they are 19 y/o, some with 79 years or never.

They think it's funny at the time however later on in the future that kid will be bullied and his life could turn out pretty bad by something it didn't have a choice in.
