Thread: Seller who scammed me left negative B- rating

NoHacksJustGlobal - September 23, 2020, 9:37 pm

I had a deal with mrjammy on August 11th 2020 for 100 installs on my botnet from EU.
I received ~13 bots: Indian, Pakistan, Indonesian, Nepal, Phillipenes and 2 EU countries.

He clearly scammed me, ignored all my messages afterwards (I tried to contact once a day for a week), now on Sep 22 2020, he adds a B- rating to me saying "Boo! ͇_(?)_ / you recived 100 bots so don't complain"

Also later on I found out he's a popular scammer on other boards.

Now I'm just wondering if there's anything that can be done here, do staff remove ratings like this? It's pretty sick that he scams and puts a negative B rating.

Vendors can personally contact Omni if something like this happens. You should contact Omni and he'll see what he can do with it.

Yes, omniscient said it once that he is not going to review your b-ratings if you are not a vendor

It's not really relevant to the scamming accusation, but I'm curious.

As someone who willfully infects other people's computers, what's your mindset when calling someone else "sick" for committing an act you think is wrong? Do you just act ignorantly towards your own disgraceful actions and only hold others accountable for their own? Essentially, are you saying that you have standards, but you'll ignore the fact that you yourself don't even meet your own standards?

Always find it humorous and hypocritical when fraudsters call others sick or wrong, as if they've never taken a look at themselves.

Hope you grow up one day :)

Hope you grow up one day :)Well you aren't wrong here, I bought installs to try mining out and it didn't go good, I don't even do that stuff anymore. So in a way I'm glad it turned out that mrjammy scammed, it showed me I was wasting my time and moved on.

Also on topic: Omni replied, he isn't removing it, nothing I can do. Closing thread.

Nobody. We do not review the b-ratings.
