Thread: Do you play Video Games? What are benefits?

OnePiece - September 27, 2020, 5:23 am

In the past Video Games has been look down because it's causing addictive behaviors.

But what are the benefits of playing Video Games?

? Leadership

- Being a leader is a tough one. There are certain genre of games that encourage you to become a leader and work with your teammates to achieve your group objectives.

? Social Skills

- Interacting with other people makes your mood lighten and feel happier. People who played more video games were more likely to have social skills.

? Creativity

- Playing video games makes you more creative because of the imagination and inspiration. For example in Minecraft a game that invites people to explore unique worlds and build imaginative creations.

? Reduce Stress

- Playing video games has become key strategy for coping stress. It's easier to play video games because it's available in other platforms and at the same time you're having fun.

I experienced this 4 Benefits while playing video games.

Discord, Instagram, Facebook. YouTube (comments/videos) and Reddit.

I added some people to one of my favourite mobile games thanks to Reddit and YouTube.

What are some good social games?

Counter-Strike:Global Offensive, Call of Duty Modern Warfare, Deceit, Exploding Kittens, Minecraft..

There's tons of games that you can play and socialize. I don't know what type of games you want to play but I hope this helps..

I've made a good group of pc players through the mobile app Clash Royale. We were in a guild together, and one night like 5 of us just started talking, we learned we liked playing similar games, or atleast wanted to try it.

Ended up adding them on snap, then steam.

I like playing video games a lot !

Video games are a great source for entertainment ,hey improves social skills and memory !

junnar1968 - October 3, 2020, 9:23 am

I usually play games to make my body and mind relax from a hard day of work.

It also makes my memory sharp.

Nope I don't play video games.

Bob the Builder - October 3, 2020, 10:06 am

Yeah you have mentioned very well benefits that video games teach like leadership etc i liked what you said i am also a video game lover

pipito - October 5, 2020, 10:02 am

Simple entertainment, bro. Everything you mention is true, but I think the greatest benefit of a video game is allowing us to leave behind the stress and boredom of everyday life to have a good time from home. :)

Most of my friends I made in game, on PC its a bit easier I'd say than on xbox or PS etc.

Discord LFG groups are good, facebook game specific pages are good, hell even twitch is a great way to meet like minded gamers.

For me, I play computer games before when I was in college. I always have a good feeling after playing Dota 1 game and I feel satisfied after. I love spending quality time with my friends that's why I do it.

FrostyNugs - October 6, 2020, 12:35 am

I play video games in my spare time mostly on the weekends when I don't have to work and can just relax so I can be beneficial in the way. There are also the financial benefits if you are good enough you can compete in competitions to earn money.

Doom - October 7, 2020, 6:05 am

I play video games to escape reality usually, I have pretty bad adhd and worry about many things in real life so gaming is very important to me.
