Thread: What type of clothing do you wear and where do you purchase it?

telly - September 28, 2020, 1:01 pm

I usually wear clothing from startup brands to help support the styles I like and it works for me since they're mostly cheap. I'm looking to expand my style in streetwear so I was wondering if anyone had any good sites to browse for clothes. I'm also looking for jewelry, thanks!

I always wear plain and non brand clothing. Been doing this for decades.

This mindset helps me to decide what to buy and wear quickly coz I dont wear any particular clothing to feel good or impress others, I do it to cover and insulate myself.

I purchase them online or from small shops.

I usually wear plain black or streetwear, you can't ever go wrong with plain clothes.

i also like doing plain black, i'm actively looking for joggers and jeans but i think pacsun is good for that. have you searched Taobao or Aliexpress before?

Depends on what I'm doing that day, if it's just a casual day of just normal tasks and chilling then tracksuit bottoms and a tee or if I've got a dinner/lunch or something to go to then some jeans and a decent polo but really changes depending on situation completely lmao

I've bought plain black t-shirts from aliexpress before, they are so much cheaper than branded t-shirts.

I was alot into luxury brand shit before when i had money haha, but now i get disgusted with it and buy simple and clean clothes. I enjoy it much more, i like to buy clothes from ASOS wich is cheap and they have really really nice clothes.

I've checked out ASOS and they're a bit plain for my style, I'm not saying their clothes are bad though! They are very simple and clean, I think Pacsun is more in my range of style as they have nice designs.

Me too I only wear none branded or some graphic branded shirts from target

I wear cheap, comfortable clothing that I buy from supermarkets or online vendors.

I like to wear steel toe capped boots.

I do like to wear one or two rings, however.

None of my clothes is honestly cheap as I value looking good and feel comfortable and confident in what I'm wearing. I usually order it online, as it's just easier nowadays. Why go to the shop when the shop can come to me.

Everything from tommy.com to ASOS, Zalando, Boozt etc.

Cunt - September 28, 2020, 3:36 pm

I wear medium range brands. Ralph Lauren, Super Dry, G-Star.
Anything that makes me feel comfortable really. That's the point right?

Unfortunately I haven't shopped in a while but I love streetwear and I can't wait to splash out again. What region are you from?

Disease - September 28, 2020, 4:03 pm

Clothing is not something I particularly care about. My wife, though? She does all of the shopping for a reason, let's put it that way.

That said, I wear what I would say are mostly mid-range brands? Nike, Under Armor, Adidas, Izod, Chaps, Old Navy, North Face, Patagonia, etc.

Around the house it's jeans or shorts, and printed t-shirts or polos. For work it's jeans or chaps, with a dress shirt or polo, depending on whether I am meeting with a client or not. Rarely I'll need to wear full business casual- for the most part, at most, it's an untucked dress shirt type of "dress up."

I'm from NA so I try to shop at most streetwear stores located there, and also the small startup brands on instagram

I wear rags and I get them from the Charity shop.
