

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Medical Marijuana?

telly - September 30, 2020, 10:21 am

I read an article about Medical Marijuana and realized that many people think that Medical Marijuana when used towards health can be just as dangerous using it with friends for example.

<https://www.drugabuse.gov/publications/drugfacts/marijuana>

I do think that Marijuana can be used for health but some people think it leads to harder drugs and can do more damage than good for people that need it. Of course if you do it recreationally there will be side effects.

Free Kurdistan - September 30, 2020, 10:28 am

I think those people that say medical marijuana is the same as doing it as a 'drug' are the same people that want it illegal. No reason discussing with them.

I think it is much more beneficial than damaging and it's sad that it's being held back in so many places.

Klonopin - September 30, 2020, 10:28 am

You right some what, but it all matters on the user right.

if the user thinks oh if 'weed' can do this to me what can other drugs do then goes down the rabbit hole. been there done that haha.

but i also met friends who only stuck with weed, so it all matters on the person right and how you think about it and treat the plant.

if you act stupid your gonna act stupid while high, vice versa

i definitely think Marijuana has medical properties though

Free Kurdistan - September 30, 2020, 10:47 am

(Sep 30, 2020 10:31 AM)Red Sox Wrote: CITE medical marijuana has eliminated the need for pills

count me in

Pills are nasty, I'm trying to avoid it as much as possible.

Mr. Atlas - October 8, 2020, 3:48 pm

I think cannabis can hurt people a lot. Me it did me a lot of good the first 2 years, the 3rd year was very special.

I smoke for fun, not to cure myself of a disease

so i think cannabis should be used for medicine and not for pleasure

I haven't smoked for 3 years

FL3XC0RE - October 8, 2020, 5:44 pm

I think it can be dangerous if it's abused .. medical or non medial. It's all about how much you're consuming in a day I would say. I smoked chronically for years but I tend to smoke a lot less now.

Hitler - October 8, 2020, 6:10 pm

I'd love to have medical marijuana, but my line of work and my client wouldn't allow it.

Tyr - October 8, 2020, 6:21 pm

If you have pre-existing issues in regards to substance abuse and you want to save money, depending on where you live and the prices in those dispensaries; I do not recommend medicinal Marijuana mainly for financial reasons. Many will say there is low potential for addiction, which is very true. But the human species is very complex and everyone human being reacts differently to chemicals introduced to the brain over time.

Now if you have the money to bankroll the cost for your medication or you live in a state or country where it is very cheap to buy legally, your relationships do not become strained, and your wallet remains full, I see absolutely no issue with the recreational and medicinal usage of Cannabis.

It comes down to self control. I run a virtual real estate office, make 30-50 calls a day, and a multitude of other things such as various online monetization projects and freelance development work, as well as college. I smoke the equivalent of about half an ounce of medical grade weed a day. It doesn't dent my pocket or relationships, so all is well and that is the main purpose of this post. You can do anything you set your mind to it and as long as you do not let THC control you and your pocket and value money & family > getting high, you will be gucci.

OnePiece - October 8, 2020, 6:27 pm

(Sep 30, 2020 10:28 AM)Real Rudy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I think those people that say medical marijuana is the same as doing it as a 'drug' are the same people that want it illegal. No reason discussing with them.

I think it is much more beneficial than damaging and it's sad that it's being held back in so many places.

In my country, it is illegal. People don't see it's medical uses and tends to look at the bad side-effects. It can give a lot of advancement in the medical field, and here we are, not using it due to fear of "illegal use." The government should allow the use of it in the medical field, and nothing more.

Bob the Builder - October 9, 2020, 12:11 am

In the United States, the most common use for medical marijuana is for pain control it is not strong enough for severe pain, it is effective for chronic pain.

Yanix - October 9, 2020, 1:48 am

Here in our country this marijuana consider as prohibited drugs and cannot be sold as the law says it was considered as a dangerous drugs that should not be sold and be use.

Goku - October 9, 2020, 2:14 am

(Sep 30, 2020 10:21 AM)90mh Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I do think that Marijuana can be used for health but some people think it leads to harder drugs and can do more damage than good for people that need it. Of course if you do it recreationally there will be side effects.

It's so weird. But because of weed I didn't do other drugs.

I greened out a couple times with weed in the beginning.

Because of this I was pretty hesitant to even try other drugs.

I also 'understand' addiction better because of weed which also stopped me from even trying other drugs.

Only bad side I see with weed is that it can bring you in a pattern.
Like smoking everyday.

But I rather be addicted to weed than coke, speed, or any other smart/hard drugs.
Weed is also my only vice. I don't drink (party excluded) and smoke cigs.