Thread: What Is Your Favorite Item You've Bought This Year?

Blockonome - October 19, 2020, 11:06 am

Dear HF,

the year is soon over, soon it will be christmas time and corona is still here. So I want to ask, what is your favourite item that you have bought this year?

Maybe you have been saving due to losing a job or have you been on a shopping spree?

As for myself, the best item I have bought this year is:

Acer Nitro 5 15.6in i7 8GB 512GB GTX1660Ti Gaming Laptop (£999.99)

<https://www.argos.co.uk/product/8732466>

I use my computer to earn money every day, and this laptop paid itself back within 1 week. I was stuck with such a shite computer before.

Haven't really bought much this year due to Covid. Got a nice Fendi backpack from my homie Lavish Living that I like at the moment.

Yin Yang - October 19, 2020, 11:17 am

My PC build for sure, got it prebuilt on eBay, but I'm getting exposed to it and will upgrade on my own.

Regulus - October 19, 2020, 11:17 am

Haven't really bought anything special either.
Been a very very rough year financially for me sadly.

shakur123 - October 19, 2020, 11:27 am

This year? i must say my wedding, its not a physical item but it was a nice event hehehe

The best thing I bought this year was an Ice maker. Our family goes through tons of Ice and even our animals love eating it. It was 150 bucks at Home Depot and makes 30 Lbs of ice a day which if you bought that at the store it would be like 3.99. During Quarantine and a hot summer, this investment paid for itself fast.

My favorite would have to be my gaming computer.

I have spent roughly $1300 USD on it in the past 3 to 4 months, and still haven't gotten it to my ideal scaling, but it'll get there.

I've been extremely kind to myself this year. I've been really lucky with sportsbetting over the last 4-5 months.

My top 3 of stuff I bought this year:

Samsung 65" Q60T 4K UHD QLED Smart-TV

I actually just pre-ordered the new PS5 today.

Samsung Galaxy s20+

I had a small shit TV before, and I wanted an upgrade for a long time. I'm happy that I finally got the opportunity to do something about it!

And I'm super hyped about the new PlayStation!

Yeah I know there are better spec'd gaming laptops but after being sick of carrying my alienware around, this really is a dream.

Everything is rapid and the speakers are stunning, the fingerprint reader, the under the keyboard camera, the trackpad and keyboard... literally stunning machine

Am late to the party,

The best computing/tech related item I bought for 2020 is a M.2 NVME 1TB SSD. It was a dream came true as I was finally able to save all of my virtual machines in one area without having the need of storing it in external drives. Furthermore, my laptop is now able to boot up way faster than before, I'm so pleased with it!

However, my favorite non computing related item purchase of the year is this baby:

I'm a writer and haven't used a pen for the purposes of work for about 10 years. It's good symbolism though.

Wow, my handwriting was never great all along, I often get questioned by people who ask "why do you bother using a fountain pen if your handwriting is so crappy?"

Nevertheless, I'm still working on my cursive writing, although even I find it difficult to understand my own handwriting too?

There's something satisfying about writing in cursive. Using a pen like that would only add to the appeal.

Haha, once you've converted to fountain pen, you wouldn't wanna go back to using ballpoints! Furthermore, fountain pens makes it easier to try out many different colours/variations of ink that ballpoint pens couldn't offer most of the time.

If you do decide to get a fountain pen, I can help you come up with a few recommendations!

No I haven't. I'm a huge fan of ASUS tho, I have my current one ASUS N56VZ since 2012 and it's been already 9 years with it and it looks as just as new. However I like to play games on it but it can run games that were released before 2017 and it struggles with everything newer (which is completely normal). It's a beast of a laptop to perform so good after so many years but now I'm looking to buy a new one so I can keep up with the trend. I know the ROG series are good, but I'm still unsure.

Yeah mine turned from a gaming laptop to an everyday work, movies etc. laptop. I rarely game on it anymore cuz

- 1) I've played literally everything possible pre 2017 ?
- 2) I don't want it to struggle anymore cuz 9 years of use is a crazy amount of time when you think about it

Yeah, do it. I didn't realize how hard I was struggling with the old one until I bought the new one!

I bought my second hand actually! I spent 600bucks and it's perfect! But as I said I am not such a gamer and don't need something so powerful.

1k is worth for a laptop, if you are using it right. If you are going to watch movies and listen to music and that's all then 300$ is enough :D

Now that's a quick decision lol! Yeah 9 years and the only thing I've changed on it was the HDD to an SSD also I've never cleaned it internally, like ever and it's the most silent laptop ever, CPU performs well etc. When I bring it to university and the laptops of the others are like jet engines, meanwhile mine is sitting there silently knowing it's the oldest bastard of them all???

My HDD failed hard and I had to restore it completely. I found out too late, it was ready to completely fail any minute when I caught it.

I pretty much have it running 24/7 and on high performance no screen saver or nothing and never had a problem aside from that.

Got to dig up my receipt that faded 2 days after I bought it and see how long its been. Thanks best buy.

My favorite purchase this year so far has been my blown glass water pipe. It's beautiful and smoking out of it is insane lol.
