Thread: Would you agree to this surgery?

Chephangan - October 20, 2020, 3:00 pm

You becoem mortal from this surgery and stay in your current age for ever.
Only if you perform a surgery with 30% chance that you die for it.

If it was 10% probably would go for it

Black Whale - October 20, 2020, 4:14 pm

Yeah if it was 10% I'd go for it and chose age 25-35. I'd have to think about it. If it was 30%, I'd wait till at least 55-65 and then YOLO it.

how tf am i becoming mortal, im already mortal

Scoppa - October 20, 2020, 4:58 pm

No I would not because life is shit and the time would be so fucking long.

It's definitely a nope for me

UsernameByte - October 20, 2020, 5:58 pm

I don't want to die someday.

A + - October 20, 2020, 6:44 pm

Yeah I would go for it. Fuck it, when you're older you'll probably be wishing you would have taken that chance. Take chances.

How do you know you're mortal? Did you try to kill yourself yet?

SIM-4845328 - October 20, 2020, 8:27 pm

Not really sure.

Imagine every time you get to love someone they gonna die before you.

In the length it's probably not worth it.

What if you become like a 150 and want to die then, can you like suicide when being mortal?

Geass - October 20, 2020, 9:39 pm

It would be really tempting but the same time risky, buy if it was possible I would take lots of time to think

I would just pass as being mortal has it's own cons.

Stig - October 20, 2020, 10:26 pm

For 30% chance? nah man... odds are not good enough. You can't risk your life when the odds are not in your favor.

That's the way I see it.

Without a doubt those are great odds

I agree id take them too at age 27

Doom - October 21, 2020, 3:31 am

I think you mean immortal OP, not mortal. As for the 30% chance; yes I'd probably take it as in my opinion its worth the risk. Only problem with immortality is that if anyone bad ever found out they could easily trap you or bury you alive and you'd literally be stuck in a hole for thousands of years.

Neon™ - October 21, 2020, 3:39 am

Yeah I'd 100% do it. Gonna take my chances.

The 30% definately is worth the risk, especially since you could potentially get millions of years of life out of it.

Blockonome - October 21, 2020, 6:28 am

I would not like that at all, because some day (not today), but some day, I am sure that I would like to die, lol.

shakur123 - October 21, 2020, 7:06 am

Damn this is a good question, i would do it, as others have stated being alive when everyone you loves die is hard, but i guess its the price to pay.

Where do i sign OP? :)

Prawnster - October 21, 2020, 7:09 am

Nah, just gotta enjoy life and age gracefully lad imo

Artisan - October 21, 2020, 10:29 am

I think you meant immortal. Either way, I wouldn't go for such a surgery. Staying at the same age forever would suck as my friends and family would keep on dying through the ages. The same heartache over and over again, unless they opt for it too but in that case the 30% risk would kick in and we'd lose a third of our loved ones and that'd suck. I choose to stay the way I am.
