Thread: Hello friends of HF - Introduction \(I have 50M in BTC\)

Sir Bitcoin - October 29, 2020, 12:49 pm

Hey guys. I'm Sir Bitcoin from bitcointalk.

I have £50M in BTC. And I'm here because you're my people. I want to trigger a discussion and hopefully get some positive feedback/ideas from you. I've never registered on HF before because it was labelled a honeypot skid home for skids, and that scared me.

First of all, I'd like to know your thoughts on this.

I'm going to be driving the "scene" forward, there's going to be a lot better tools/guides/methods publically available for all soon. I plan on hiring the best coders (in the world) to code things like RAT's (I love RAT's) and malware and find all the knowledgeable dudes that can give methods that will help people and not get saturated.

Basically I want to provide REAL noob friendly guides that are PROVEN to work and will work for any noob that wants to make money online. Not just RAT's, but it's certainly a sector I'm going to be investing in.

I see this as a very good thing in God's eyes, and will give me a lot of God karma for doing so. Imagine for example it took just 1 guy off the street and saved him from stabbing someone or getting stabbed. That's a good thing, right?

The police are so harsh on hackers, would you not agree? I think this will change, eventually. Because it has to. Why should we go to prison, for example someone in poverty that is desperate for money and has no other choice but to hack? Why should they go to prison for trying to use their brain and causing no harm to anyone.

Yes, people lose their money sometimes if it's BTC for example. But the majority of people that hack fail to get things like BTC and go for PayPal, which is returned usually within 24-48 hours after they see the money is missing. Agree? Even fraudsters that buy the cards from places like jstash these days, who is really losing money in the end? THE RICH MOTHERUCKING BANKS! So why should we not promote blackhat hacking and move the world forward?

Question for you guys... am I right? Is it a good thing to drive hacking forward and help people? It's easy to not get caught if you follow the right steps, people should know that. I have been caught, but it's because I was very silly. I grew into hacking from games. And I didn't realise what I was doing, or that it could have consequences. I thought people wouldn't take it that seriously. But I gave my bank details out and they found me. A few years later, after being found not guilty, I'm doing... quite splendid. I have a bright future ahead of me. It's certainly going to be interesting. And the hacking scene can expect to see some MAJOR cool things when I'm involved.

Seriously, I know some of you people look at me as a joke right now. But what I'm speaking is good things. Positivity and hope for the future of skids everywhere. God has blessed me on my internet adventure, and if I can help others I'm going to.

I will probably create many hacker hooligans and therefore improve many lives. I think the most important thing to get across to people is the right things to use to not get caught. And obviously make sure they understand 1 slip up means prison time. Hacking makes the world a safer, better and more fairer place.

Hackers are usually more open minded and see things in better ways than other people. What say you? Are you with me? Or is this the most retardest time wasting thread you've ever read?

Well, friends. If you see me one day, it may be here, it may be elsewhere, but I guarantee you will have respect for me.

Troll away ?

No begging please! I would but, it's too much effort right now if you get me. I'm not selfish :}

OT: Is it a good thing to drive bh hacking scene forward and create many cyber criminals?

I think I could be a biblical hacker, with morals and such. I could be an example for many. But I prefer not to code. Let me know :}

I'm not sure right now. The owner of the forum makes me suspicious. He knows we would be friends if we spoke, but I don't see a way to communicate right now without offending.

The forum needs to change! :}

Please don't jump on my ass over what I've just said. Omniscient will understand what I'm saying. The thing is... I want to keep this thread open and see what people think.

Plenty of time to buy awards etc soon. I expect I will be Admin, or VIP, or something along those lines.

Sadly, HF is whitehat and I guess it always will be. I know people that trust Omniscient and will go about business that they can here. But ya. I think the future is going to be a forum I won't mention yet. :}

I want to remain friends with Omniscient, but I am skeptical about some things. To be honest, I'm sure if we meet in the future it would be quite worthwhile. And I'm sure he is probably one of the most knowledgeable guys in the scene.

I've never registered on HF before. But I know many people trust Omniscient. :}

Yo what? I don't understand. Why would police be less harsh on hackers??

I don't think I'm following the logic. Just because a person is desperate for money doesn't mean that laws no longer apply to them. Also, in which instances would hacking not harm anyone?

If I'm desperate for money and I decide to go rob people off the streets, should I not go to prison because I was desperate for money?

You're missing the point. If you decide to rob someone off the streets, that's a real crime. This is the internet and clicking a mouse/typing. That's what I'm trying to get across...

When you rob someone, there's a chance one of you will die. If you rob someone's paypal, who is it really hurting?

Oh hacking isn't a real crime? I'm actually surprised you're justifying this - ever heard of morals?

I have an idea - you could get a job and make your own money and stop taking other people's money :O

Nice troll. I'm not going to respond to closed-minded idiots with no experience like you.

Getting a job, for some, may be okay. But some people aim higher and chase their dreams and don't want to live the standard life the government line up for them. Education is important but not everyone takes it serious.

Hope you're doing good man.

What bullshit man? Trying to keep it real here. I'd say it's a creative thread that is to the point. Moreover I am high on cocaine and such. Hmph. Maybe you should learn better ways to express yourself before you come into contact with me, clown. I'm too good for this shit. No one knows my true ability. I am here and people are scared to interact with me because they fear God. Which is the right thing to do. But the people that don't, are being rather mean. I feel like I will be closed soon. Anyhow, I will return to bitcointalk and entertain the real. Good night!

If I have just typed a load of weird things, don't worry guys. I've been talking to many people in the world about my Habbo friends from 10 years ago. I don't know what the point in this was. But I'm sure it serves a purpose somewhere. Thank you for interacting with me HF. I know many of you are not BH so will not say a thing, but I doubt I will be classified our whole lives. There's people that need me. As we know. There's people that need God. There's God who needs me to be someone for many. But it means clashing the entire fame population.

People are scared of me right now. But only because I have driven faith into them, by speaking in a hopeful manor on cocaine. It is only pure cocaine I can be truly with God. I'm sure next time will be a difference experience.

I have no social media anymore so I may use HF as a substitute if I am able to stay. Omniscient is like a God of the scene, who would not direct you to my website because it is illegal. Thanks!

Your post is the standard 18 yr old school drop out script kiddie prik post that says you can't hack and have no intelligence and can't come up with anything more creative, even on the internet, where we can be anything and entertain our friends. Well, pretty much if you do have the funds and if your vision in the OP is true - then there is nobody better to talk to outside of myself, riggs and possibly armada if you really plan on pushing the scene forward.

Otherwise if it's just a big troll - then the other posts on the thread.

From what I can see, you are somewhere between Brandon and Shilo and I believe once upon a time you owned the website Joker21.com "The Degentleman"

The reasons why I believe OP 'could' be plausible.

Involved in bitcoin from 2014. Seemed bullish but broke - repaid his loans however and wasn't in the hacking scene.

Posted the Fappening for fun rather than to be malicious.

Ran a 'gambling' website that weren't held for long but enough time for OP to get a feel in the early days.

Is from Canada.

and a few other reasons I wont share but I haven't confirmed OP having said wealth just it's not an easy dismissal of 'they are broke'.

The most curious thing is using "£" in the OP.

(Oct 29, 2020 12:49 PM)Sir Bitcoin Wrote: CITE Hey guys. I'm Sir Bitcoin from bitcointalk.

I have £50M in BTC. And I'm here because you're my people. I want to trigger a discussion and hopefully get some positive feedback/ideas from you. I've never registered on HF before because it was labelled a honeypot skid home for skids, and that scared me.

First of all, I'd like to know your thoughts on this.

I'm going to be driving the "scene" forward, there's going to be a lot better tools/guides/methods publically available for all soon. I plan on hiring the best coders (in the world) to code things like RAT's (I love RAT's) and malware and find all the knowledgeable dudes that can give methods that will help people and not get saturated.

Basically I want to provide REAL noob friendly guides that are PROVEN to work and will work for any noob that wants to make money online. Not just RAT's, but it's certainly a sector I'm going to be investing in.

I see this as a very good thing in God's eyes, and will give me a lot of God karma for doing so. Imagine for example it took just 1 guy off the street and saved him from stabbing someone or getting stabbed. That's a good thing, right?

The police are so harsh on hackers, would you not agree? I think this will change, eventually. Because it has to. Why should we go to prison, for example someone in poverty that is desperate for money and has no other choice but to hack? Why should they go to prison for trying to use their brain and causing no harm to anyone.

Yes, people lose their money sometimes if it's BTC for example. But the majority of people that hack fail to get things like BTC and go for PayPal, which is returned usually within 24-48 hours after they see the money is missing. Agree? Even fraudsters that buy the cards from places like jstash these days, who is really losing money in the end? THE RICH MOTHERUCKING BANKS! So why should we not promote blackhat hacking and move the world forward?

Question for you guys... am I right? Is it a good thing to drive hacking forward and help people? It's easy to not get caught if you follow the right steps, people should know that. I have been caught, but it's because I was very silly. I grew into hacking from games. And I didn't realise what I was doing, or that it could have consequences. I thought people wouldn't take it that seriously. But I gave my bank details out and they found me. A few years later, after being found not guilty, I'm doing... quite splendid. I have a bright future ahead of me. It's certainly going to be interesting. And the hacking scene can expect to see some MAJOR cool things when I'm involved.

Seriously, I know some of you people look at me as a joke right now. But what I'm speaking is good things. Positivity and hope for the future of skids everywhere. God has blessed me on my internet adventure, and if I can help others I'm going to.

I will probably create many hacker hooligans and therefore improve many lives. I think the most important thing to get across to people is the right things to use to not get caught. And obviously make sure they understand 1 slip up means prison time. Hacking makes the world a safer, better and more fairer place.

Hackers are usually more open minded and see things in better ways than other people. What say you? Are you with me? Or is this the most retardest time wasting thread you've ever read?

Well, friends. If you see me one day, it may be here, it may be elsewhere, but I guarantee you will have respect for me.

Troll away ?
