Thread: Getting dumped for supporting Trump \(Lil Wayne\)

Exalted - November 4, 2020, 5:27 am

Whew, imagine getting dumped for your political affiliation, would you be able to live with a partner that supports the opposing side?

TMZ Wrote:Lil Wayne is single once again -- his GF, model Denise Bidot, is moving on ... and it sounds like his endorsement of President Trump was the last straw.

Denise deleted her IG account Tuesday, but before she went dark, there were a bunch of signs of trouble spotted by Internet sleuths. For starters, folks noticed at some point that Mr. Carter and Ms. Bidot stopped following each other.

Then there was Denise's not-so-cryptic meme post that read, "Sometimes love just isn't enough." However, blogger Love B. Scott is reporting Weezy's love for Trump was the problem -- specifically, last week's meeting/photo-op with DT was the last straw for Denise.

I would have a relationship with someone whose political affiliation differs from mine. Often, politicians on the opposing sides aren't enemies but just competing political ideologies.

I'll have to agree with you, having a political affiliation should not be a reason not to be able to have a working relationship.

Thanks. Politics shouldn't affect our personal relationships.

Spot on. Hearing both sides is very important. I sometimes do discuss politics with friends, but we always keep it civil even if we disagree on all subjects.

If you're willing to break up with somebody over that then you never really liked them that much anyway

Xerotic - November 4, 2020, 9:28 am

It depends. I don't want someone who is just a female version of myself. I want someone who is different than me. That being said... in general our mindset about life and what is important should at least line up. Politics aren't just a passing thing. They are what determine what you believe in for our world.

Blue Sh - November 4, 2020, 10:17 am it's disgusting how the left always makes it seem like you are evil for supporting what you believe in and if you don't support them, they will just attack you like you are a worthless being.

They want you to support LGBT, Feminists, BLM, etc but if you support Trump you are just racist and evil. Even if you don't support Trump but still don't support those groups then you are still evil and racist !!!!

Tyr - November 4, 2020, 10:22 am

Great question & it is one that certainly contributed to swaying other people from voting for the other candidate. Personally I don't let politics get into my love life & family life though so it doesn't bother me.

That's how I see it as well; I know couples that have been together for years whilst they differ massively in political affiliation.

Agreed, there should be similarities in the mindset about life; politics does affect that. In the end, it will always depend on person to person basis.

It is a harsh world, my friend.

Smart choice, that is probably the best thing to do.

Ultras - November 4, 2020, 11:00 am

I looked up the "model" and all I can think is good riddance. I'm gonna go out on a limb here and say she's probably had a pink pussy hat on her head at some point and has at least ten tweets about fat positivity. I hope Dwayne finds someone better soon enough. As for your question, it depends entirely on the reasoning. Could she mention five reasons, that aren't just fake news talking points or emotional rhetoric, why she support x party and explain how those reasons would benefit the people? If so, sure.

VisualSoft - November 4, 2020, 11:01 am

Its going to be tough to predict.

MarvinMalware - November 4, 2020, 11:58 am

I wouldn't leave someone because they prefer a different political candidate, however I like being with someone who has the same outlook on life as me and that sometimes coincides with political views. Thankfully my current girlfriend and I don't have this issue we're pretty similar in views, I don't want to be with someone who doesn't have their own opinion though.

Yes. I'm born and raised in Mississippi (much more right then I am left) and I have been living in California for 5 years and dating a far left standing person for the past 3 years. It works, you just need to be able to talk reasonable, stop and listen to each other, and realize that our relationship is above petty disagreements.

So you would require at least some real knowledge about the party they support, fair enough.

Yeah, there must be some similarities otherwise it might get difficult. Glad you don't have this problem!

Look, a good example. Glad you're able to have it work.

I would prefer a partner with the same views as me, but having differences make great relationships. Plus you can't learn anything, if no one ever challenges what you know!

Hope that makes sense, I'll be glad when all this political mess is out the way.

50 cent actually got laid by old girlfriend because he told everyone that he was voting for Trump because of Biden's tax plan (actually he can't vote because of a felony when he was 19 which is pretty crazy when he's 45.) Then his ex girlfriend let it be know she was very disappointed in him saying that on his big platform but that if he'd publically denounce Trump she hinted they could have a one off make up session. So he did. He quoted her with the eyes emote and then said "Yeah Fuck Trump" and threw out some bizarre accusation against Trump. ?
