most leaks come from connections with the artists/producers.

no point in you attempting this, really. easier to just wait for them to leak and get them online instead.

Well you see unreleased music can be kept by a&r employees at record labels, friends of the aritst producers etc, and a sum odd number of other people that know how to get access to it. What ive been doing for the last few years is waiting for music to get leaked, but I want to be able to get my own shit.

To be honest this is probably more difficult then what it's worth really, Unless you've got a good amount of information on your target.

A lot of leaks come from those within close proximity to the artist and even then it's usually kept on a CD in a drawer rather than on their laptops.

With the artists im interested in a lot of the leaks dont come directly from the camp of that artist. Not even trying to get it to sell or leak it, I just want it for self satisfaction.

I doubt you'll find someone retarded enough to spend big $$$ on a shit record, That's probably unreleased for a reason.
