The user refused to use Shoppy to purchase my guide and asked me to make a contract manually.

He sent me a transaction that turned to be invalid and has been deleted few minutes after being created, but I had already provided him access to the guide.

Transaction hash:

DO NOT ACCEPT MANUAL PAYMENTS FROM HIM.

So we are looking at an exit scammer? Cheating blockchain wild.

Sorry Ombra.

Just another one on the list.

Personally I'm not concerned about the loss I had to face. I know it was possible but I never faced a transaction that turned to be invalid, now I know how to deal with them.

Not even an exit scammer. He joined with the purpose of scamming. I'm guessing a multi.

Mate you see a 2 sat/B transaction. It's not SUPER OBVIOUS that you'll get a double spend?
(Fee 0.00000452 BTC
(2.009 sat/B - 0.502 sat/WU - 225 bytes)

I've been ingenuous. It's not uncommon for me to see transactions with low fees and have them confirmed at the end.

This time it went differently and I learned from it.

Should always wait until 1 confirmation before sending your product/service, thankfully this is a lesson learned.. imagine scamming $15 lmao.
