Because of the hosting of the crypts on hackforums, hackforums could be in serious trouble aswell from all this

SIM-3257834 - November 20, 2020, 7:00 pm

The only people affected are the clowns who used their product. Good! Let's clean the world of skids.

Hitler - November 20, 2020, 7:02 pm

HF is not responsible for anything that goes on here.

You'd know that if you realized the NCA from the UK is registered on here.

Hackforums does NOT promote any illegal activity, Hackforums is not braking any laws.

There is no malware hosted on HF, just Pokémon.

What in the absolute fuck are you talking about?

Learn your place, and get the fuck out.

The only people in trouble are those who've actually done something wrong it's got jackshit to do with HF. T.O.S. is T.O.S. Follow the rules and you'll be fine. They didn't and they're facing consequences, that's how the world works. Now go crawl back in your hole.

OBAMASELF - November 20, 2020, 9:33 pm

HF is the most cleanest and innocent forum I have seen so far lol

If what you're saying is true then this website should be down right now.

Get off me, you're annoying.

Comrade - November 21, 2020, 12:00 am

Let me give you a simple example

"We can buy KNIFE from the retail store easily...

Now its upon the user how to use the knife, he/she can either use it to kill someone or to cut the vegetables at home.....

In either of the above cases, the Knife seller is not held responsible....right?"

So, as far as my knowledge...HF isn't responsible for any blackhat activity going on here.....

NZT - November 21, 2020, 12:02 am

Reading this thread straight after the "why is everyone on HF so angry" thread definitely proves the point...

Mr. Robot - November 21, 2020, 12:38 am

Imagine a world where people couldn't learn to pentest/hack. Holy shit.

It would be really strange if HF were responsible for the actions of its users. It's like accusing the deep web of baby porn or some other bloody bad thing?

Tro yeh - November 21, 2020, 12:57 am

Get your facts straight.

HF won't be affected by it.

Ortek - November 21, 2020, 2:33 am

Some babies are dropped on their heads, others are smacked against a wall. This is the result.

HF does not host anything dude.

The only person who's in trouble is you...

Talking about something on a forum is not illegal, it's only illegal if you do it. Hack forums is not engaging in illegal activity

Only ones getting affected are the buyers of those crypts period.

We'd be letting China and Russia win the cyber wars. America needs HF. We're a teenage Playground for future NSA/CIA/FBI agents and Military. I know many members who learned interesting things on HF to go on and join fortune 500 companies or government agencies using HF as part of their resume. There are even active people here.

HF ain't in trouble over Cyberseal.

Hackforums hasn't done anything wrong. McDonald's isn't at fault if someone does a drug deal in the bathroom

I like to use a similar example.

Let's say a bar has someone doing cocaine or selling it in the bathroom. The bar owner doesn't get arrested for that happening. And by far that happens commonly across bars all over America.

There are actual laws protecting HF from the activity of the members. The same laws that protect Google, Github, or Twitter. You can get malware on Github and they don't remove it if reported. Github has over 9000 repositories under "malware" alone.

If the law does change then HF would change. Until then, we're fine as-is. HF is 13 years old.

How has this forum been running for like 10 years on the clear-net if it's illegal to run?
