Thread: Discord Impersonator

Deany - November 22, 2020, 9:25 pm

Yup, seems I have one.

1. I will never deal with anyone off-site.
2. Always use contracts.
3. Always confirm (via pm's) if you're talking to right person.
4. I will never contact anyone off-site to do a deal.
5. I don't even have a discord linked to my profile. Please be smart you guys.

Thanks.

It's just some broke zoomer impersonating everyone with recent activity from CE threads from the pattern I see.

Dorrance - November 22, 2020, 10:15 pm

Another broke boy tryna finesse life

Driz - November 22, 2020, 10:54 pm

Yeh lol dude tried to scam me 15$.

Blogger - November 22, 2020, 11:29 pm

This is the third one in two days. Someone's saving up for Christmas. lol

Scoppa - November 23, 2020, 2:37 am

Broke niggas will stay a broke niggas spiral - November 23, 2020, 3:28 am

Idk why people don't just use the postbit to confirm who they are talking to... Or PM

Omniscient - November 23, 2020, 1:31 pm

I think most of the scamming is a small group of people maybe 2-3 even that constantly target HF members in various ways.

They seem to be going down the list of recent/active contracts and hitting up those users.

Really don't see why it is so hard to click trust scan if you are upgraded, and then if not, just click the little discord icon under each users post-- right next to convo.

I think 100% of the imposter scamming could be avoided by one simple golden rule:

Never send funds without an ACCEPTED contract with the user.

Or just conducting the deal on HF convos, which can't be deleted or faked. I mean one can chat on discord about everything else all the time, doesn't take a big effort to just write sensitive things through convos.

back in my day it was all done via PM using "reply" option to include all the quoted history. We all got lazy.

Deany - November 25, 2020, 12:33 pm

I also noticed that whoever is doing this is trying to scam for bytes...

Very strange

Yep, my imposter tried to hit someone for bytes earlier.

Seems they are going through my recently completed or active contracts and attempting to reach out to those users.

Not true. Back in the day everyone was using Skype to scam.

And yes, making sure your contract is ACCEPTED before doing a deal is crucial. However, it says this already on the Contract page when you start it.

Money Man - November 25, 2020, 5:54 pm

I vote to ban Discord in general, no point in taking deals off site when we have convo's + contracts.

Really don't see a point in having deals done off site lol / a need for Discord. I understand a lot of support is done through discord but all business / contracts should be done on HF period
