Thread: What is the best site for selling digital products

saso - November 24, 2020, 2:14 pm

I was selling on eBay, but unfortunately my account was suspended. I tried to contact them, but the suspension was refused.

Anyone with solutions or sites I can sell in would be great the best way/site to sell digital product is making your own store and do proper marketing

it helps you giving better experience to your customer

if your product is less than 10-20$ you can use selly.gg kind of services

But the problem is I don't know how to promote the store

I do not have many social media followers

That's why its best to start on it as soon as possible. Social media engagement will prove to be very valuable towards your business. If this is not something you can do yourself and have a certain budget, there are a bunch of people doing these kind of services, take a look around in the Marketplace.

i recommend making your own marketing scheme and best bet is to learn marketing yourself

i recommend learning from youtube and Udemy (warez disallowed) here are some recommendations, but do not limit yourself to just these

This is a great use-case for toffee.com, we're like the eBay for digital products. Feel free to sign up and check the platform!

Thank you

I really appreciate this

I will teach myself from YouTube, I hope it will change something in me
